

Senator J. R. Hanley Delivers Address At Republican Rally

Wyoming County Senator Delivers Important Address at Weekly Meeting of Republican Club—
Other Speakers.

One of the largest gatherings that visited the former Ritz Theatre in some time was present Thursday night at the weekly meeting of the Republican Club to hear Senator Joseph E. Hanley of Wyoming County.
Guest speaker, deliver an informative
address on the November election and listen to other speakers who were enlightening talks on the same subject.

Among the other speakers were N.
LeVan Haver, prominent young attorney, who was master of ceremonies introducing the several speakers; Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, who introduced Senator Hanley and Philip El-ting, Republican leader of Ulster
county.

Judge Fowler, introduced as a man with legislative experience and 12 years of service as county judge, was the first speaker presented. The judge spoke of the keen interest in the present general election, saying it is as it should be. Every citizen should be concerned about the men who are to lead the affairs of the nation and to learn the various issues of the several political parties,
such as government economy, tariff,
labor, public utility, prohibition and the abiding issues.

The speaker said he wished to draw on the so-called "depression
issue", which is really not an issue because an issue is something that can be argued for and against, but which the opposition party takes as an issue. The judge called charges made on President Hoover as the cause of the depression "bunk" and condemned promises made by Democratic orators that their candidate can beat show the way out of the economic straits. He quoted Elliott Roosevelt, son of Franklin D., as having said in a recent speech, "It is not reasonable to suppose that a Democratic Congress led by a Democratic president can in six months
time get this country back on its feet financially."

Judge Fowler contradicted the Elliott Roosevelt theory by offering a citation from the Encyclopedia Britannica concerning the Democratic administration of President Grover Cleveland as follows:

"The debt of the treasury made it impossible that the gold reserve
should be used to meet current expenses. Holders of the government bonds, however, were not redeemed.
The government was forced to issue currency. Bonds were issued and sold to the amount of $162,000,000.
The business world was in a state of constant agitation. Bank failures were numerous and commercial distractions widespread. Among the consequences of the panic was a reduction of wages in many employments
accompanied by labor troubles.
Cleveland's second term ended on March 4, 1897, and he then retired into private life, universally respected and cordially remembered."

By the excerpt from the encyclopedia, Judge Fowler proved that no
president, Republican or Democratic,
can be blamed for such a thing like
a depression, especially the present one, which is worldwide. He spoke of Cleveland as one of the ablest men between the period of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, indicating that if he as head of the country could not avert a panic, President Hoover could hardly be charged for being responsible for adverse economic conditions today.
The judge laid the depression to the World War, saying it was the aftermath proving that history travels in cycles and "boom" times are always followed by depression.

He urged that in voting people and their judgment in returning to the White House the leader that has done all in his power to keep the country out of worse circumstances than it might be pressed with. The judge allowed that many, both rich
and poor, have been hit by the depression, but that conditions are becoming more prosperous and should be allowed to continue under Republican leadership.

Senator Hanley spoke.
Senator Hanley, introduced by Senator Arthur H. Wicks as one of the ablest orators in the State Senate, lived up to the introduction
by giving one of the most fiery and informative speeches heard locally
about the Republican campaign since it opened.

The speaker said he was proud and happy that President Hoover was in the White House because he is a man of courage. A man of courage is what we need to lead us out of this dark time and into the future.
Saying that, although President Hoover is being blamed for all the ills of the depression he is the one best fitted to safely guide the nation to better times.

Senator Hanley proved his point concerning the president's courage
by saying that in spite of being blamed to run for reelection he refused to take that money, which might help for a short time but ultimately even back further and other adverse conditions. He quoted the president as saying, "I refuse to take the money to buy votes."
This, the speaker explained, took the quickness of a chessman and not a politician to state. He also pointed out that if he took money for President Hoover to vote his opposition to Republicanism would be an advanced political principle.

Regarding the Senate Senator Hanley said that the Senate is the safeguard of the people.

70 Injured in London Riot

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Sixty persons were nursing injuries today in the wake of the riot that raged in Hyde Park as the climax of the hunger army's march on London.

A dozen of the casualties, three of them policemen, were seriously hurt
in the furious melee that transformed the fashionable park into a battleground yesterday and last night.
The battle was between several thousand police and many thousands more of unemployed, who ostensibly were fighting under a red flag that bore the hammer and sickle of Communism.

Completely organized to fight in the presence of 100,000 persons that littered the park, the police charged again and again.

Each charge provoked a barrage of stones and mud. Even the trees and railings in the park were mutilated
by the mob in its desperate effort to gain the upper hand.

But the police prevailed, and slowly
but surely cleared the area of the rioters, arresting only 14 persons during the whole disturbance.

Hoover and Ritchie Indiana Bound

Indianapolis, Oct. 28 (AP).—Riv-
ality in campaign showmanship flared high in the Hoosier capital today as President Herbert Hoover and Governor Albert C. Ritchie brought bids for party support to Indiana voters.
The Republican President making his fourth western swing in his campaign for re-election, and the Maryland candidate, speaking for the Democratic candidate, Governor
Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, headed for this "crucible of America" with major addresses prepared for delivery before two great crowds.

Former Kingston Man With President Hoover

It will be of interest to Kingston people to know that a former resident of Kingston is traveling with President Hoover on his campaigning tour throughout the country. Allen Fowler, son of the late A. Ray and Mrs. Fowler, is associated with the government production of moving pictures for "Current News". Mr.
Fowler's special province is the sound work of these movies.

Overdue Return to Work

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—
According to demands of prison officials, convicts at a state road camp near here, shot out of their barracks
and returned to work today, ending
a strike that kept the camp interrupted for 24 hours. Subbed after being kept at bay in a camp overlooked by heavily armed guards,
the striking convicts agreed to go back to work until their grievances can be aired at a hearing by prison authorities.

Donovan Parade Plans Arranged For Saturday

Plans for the reception and parade for Colonel William J. Donovan when he arrives in Kingston from Poughkeepsie Saturday evening have been announced by P. C. Jones of the Independent Veterans Committee, who is grand marshal of the parade.
They are as follows:

The parade will leave Broadway and Ferry street at 7:15 o'clock sharp
and march up Broadway to the Broadway theatre where a program will be held under the auspices of the Republican County Committee.
Admission to the theatre will be free and all are invited.
Formation of the parade will be:

Division No. 1
Police escort.
Kingston Post American Legion
Drum Corps.

Colonel William J. Donovan in car.
Veterans' delegation from Ulster
county.

Division No. 2
Port Even Firemen's Flie. Drum
and Bugle Corps.
Young Republican Club.
Fourth Ward Republican Club.
Kingston Republican Club.

All invited.
A special invitation is extended to all supporting Colonel Donovan for governor to join in the parade.

Veterans having uniforms, "tin
hats" or any part of their service equipment are requested to wear them.

The parade will halt and disband
at the Broadway Theatre, not proceeding further, because Colonel Donovan is scheduled to return to Poughkeepsie at an early hour.

The Republican county committee
in charge of the program at the theatre, where the veterans will end their part in the proceedings, has announced that speeches are to be made by the following men:

Colonel William Donovan, candidate for governor.
George Z. Medall, candidate for U. S. Senate.
Philip A. Goodwin, candidate for member of Congress.

George B. Young, national speakers' bureau.

Other features will be selections
by the Broadway Theatre Orchestra.
Starting time of the program at the theatre is 7:30 o'clock.

As a capacity crowd is expected,
any many may not be able to get into the theatre, amplifiers have been arranged for and will broadcast the speeches to those outside.

COLONIAL DECORATIONS AT PRESBYTERIAN FAIR

Falling in line with the universal observation of the Washington bicentennial, the ladies of the Roadout Presbyterian Church will present their annual fair next week Tuesday and Wednesday in connection with the annual turkey dinner on Tuesday and salad supper on Wednesday, in colonial decorations that will be unique. A colonial doorway will frame each of the booths. There will be two especially fine silhouettes of George and Martha Washington occupying a place of honor, and tea
and coffee will be served from in-front of a fine old colonial mantle.
Lights will shine through wrought iron lanterns. The ladies will be in colonial costume and the young women who will serve the dinner and supper will also be in costume appropriate to the time. The chairman of the booths are Mrs. William Metcalf and Mrs. William McCullough, home craft; Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. William Hutton, art department; Mrs.
Henry C. Connelly and Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, sweet shop; Mrs. Irving
Scott and Mrs. Arthur Cragie, juvenile department, and Mrs. John Sterley, decorations.

SMITH CHERISHED BY MASSACHUSETTS CROWD

Boston, Oct. 28 (AP).—Massachusetts' Democratic sons turned out in a cheering horde last night to hear Alfred E. Smith urge upon them the "unqualified, full and complete support of Franklin D. Roosevelt."
He called for the election of Gov.
Roosevelt in the opening sentences of his speech, and again, just before he closed, he expressed confidence that
"the salvation of the country in this crisis" lies in the success of the Democratic ticket under the leadership of Frank Roosevelt and John Gardner.

The crowd of 15,000 that fought
its way into the Boston arena thum-bored its approval of his criticisms of President Hoover. It roared its agreement with his attacks on administration policies. It laughed as he greeted with "suspicion" the "solicitude of Senator Moses" after his (Smith's) defeat at the Chicago convention.

Temporary Alimony.
Application made at Supreme Court in Poughkeepsie in the matter of Margaret Hutton against Joseph Hutton, the court has awarded temporary alimony and counsel fee to plaintiff in the sum of $30 a week
pending trial of the action and $200
counsel fees and $50 disbursements.
Robert J. Howard appears for plaintiff and Solomon Goodman for defendant.

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP).—Treasury receipts for October 26 were $64,909,937.93; expenditures, $39, $46,141.91; balance, $777,461,662.
99. Customs duties for 25 days of October, $31,319,170.36.

Commercial Package Contest Planned for Horticultural Meet

A new feature is announced for the meetings and exhibitions of the New York State Horticultural Society at Rochester and Kingston next January. This is a "Commercial Package Contest", planned to encourage packers of New York apples to improve their packs.

The society has cooperated with the State Department of Agriculture and Markets in arranging for the contest. It will be in charge of H. S.
Duncan of Rochester, director of farm products inspection for the state department. While separate contests will be arranged at Rochester and Kingston, for the convenience of western New York and Hudson Valley
growers, the two groups will in effect
be pitted against each other.

The society's annual meeting and exhibition will be held at Rochester on January 11, 12 and 13, and the eastern meeting and exhibition at Kingston on January 25, 26 and 27.
The Rochester gathering will be the society's 76th annual event, while the Kingston meeting will mark the first time the eastern event has been held on the west side of the Hudson river.

For a number of years the eastern meeting and exhibition has been held at Poughkeepsie, but is being moved to Kingston because of more satisfactory facilities for constantly growing needs.

Roy P. McPherson of LeRoy, secretary of the society, is in charge of plans for the exhibition at both places. Floor plans and other information regarding exhibits are being distributed to exhibitors of other years and copies may be had upon request.

In addition to the Commercial Package Contest, all of the usual exhibits of fruit are to be retained. The boys' department, which for several years has been an important feature of the Rochester show, is to be duplicated at Kingston.

Ella Warren Is Sent To Bedford

Girl Arrested in Raid on Former Fleischer Hotel on Strand Committed to Women's Institution—Mrs. Buschbaum Ordered Out of Town.

Recently when the police made a raid on the former Fleischer Hotel on East Strand they arrested, among others, Ella Warren, 19, of Harley,
and Mrs. Margaret Buschbaum, 34, of Poughkeepsie. Both women had previously entered pleas of not guilty to being immoral persons, but on Thursday they changed their former pleas to that of guilty.

Judge Cullen sentenced the Warren girl to Bedford Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills for a term not exceeding three years.

The Buschbaum woman was fined $25
and sentenced to 30 days in jail, but the serving of the jail sentence was suspended provided she leave Kingston and remain out for a period of one year. Her husband paid her fine and she left, presumably for Poughkeepsie.

Levi Broadhead of South Pine street, arrested for public intoxication, was given a suspended jail sentence of five days.

Boy, Hit By Car, Badly Injured

Joseph Bodie, 10, of 136 Newkirk avenue, sustained a fracture of the skull and other injuries when struck
by an auto driven by Wilfred Hahn
of 36 Gill street, about 8 o'clock
Thursday evening at the intersection of Delaware and Newkirk avenues.
Mr. Hahn in reporting the accident to the police department stated that the boy had run out in front of his car. He applied the brakes and swerved to the left but the fender of the car struck the boy, knocking him down. Mr. Hahn picked up the injured lad and rushed him to the Kingston Hospital where his condition today was reported as fair.

DEMOCRATS DENY SEEKING FUNDS FROM CANADA

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Republican national committee said
in a statement today that Democratic Chairman James A. Farley's denial
he solicited campaign funds from a Canadian "raises a question of veracity between himself and the Montreal Star as well as the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers in the United States."

The committee said that before making public yesterday an item printed in the Montreal Star which said Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, wrote a shipping man there seeking financial assistance, "the Republican national committee verified from the Montreal newspaper that its news story
was accurate in every detail."

WREST WATCH AWAITS OWNER AT FREEMAN OFFICE

A wrist watch is being held at The Freeman office on Fair street awaiting identification. Thursday a Poughkeepsie resident called at The Freeman office in search of a woman whom he had given a ride that day.
The woman and her son had mimed
a bus and were picked up on the Kingston-New Paltz road and brought to Kingston. After they alighted uptown the driver of the car
found a watch in his car and is desirous of returning it to the owner.
By proper identification the watch will be returned to its owner and the name of the person who found it will also be supplied.

Annual Marriage

Supreme Court Judge Walter F.
Bliss has granted an order annulling
the marriage of Mildred Billings and David Billings on application of plaintiff. Arthur B. Ewig appeared for plaintiff. Mr. and Mrs. Billings were married at Municipal Building
in New York city on November 24, 1928. The complaint alleges that plaintiff consented to the civil ceremony at that time with the understanding that later a religious ceremony would be performed by a rabbi. This she alleged Mr. Billings refused.

PACIFIC CELEBRATES TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Rome, Oct. 28 (AP).—All Italy turned out today to celebrate the tenth anniversary of Premier Mus-solini's Fascism.
The event was marked by a nationwide holiday, and was the climax of
a week-long series of inaugurations
honoring Fascist program.

Colorful "Wild Bill" Donovan Will Speak In City on Saturday

Colonel "Bill" Donovan, the Republican nominee for governor of New York state, will speak at the Republican mass meeting at the Broadway Theatre on Saturday evening of this week. The meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock and Colonel Donovan will be the principal speaker.

Readers of The Freeman are familiar with the outstanding features of Colonel "Bill" Donovan's career. They are reading the story of his life as it is being told from day to day—"The Dramatic Life Story of Colonel 'Fighting Bill' Donovan."

Bruce Barton, the celebrated author, has paid a glowing tribute to Colonel "Bill" Donovan. "The only man on the state political horizon
who gives me a real kick," says Bruce Barton. "That is his full name
and title as printed in the newspapers and spoken by the presiding officers who introduce him at meetings. To those who know him as a friend he is 'Bill'; and to the fighting Irishmen who followed him in France—
and used to plead with him, for the love of Heaven to be careful and not get himself killed so often—he was and always will be 'Wild Bill!'"

Origin of "Wild Bill"

The New York Times tells how the nickname "Wild Bill" was given to Colonel Donovan. The Times says that it grew from his habit of getting things done. When he went to France he observed that "the good old Irish method of licking hell out of the Germans is the only way to win the war." But even the Irish had to be toughened. He got the idea of making his men take off their shoes and scurry around the country barefoot, shouting to them as they did so. Once when he asked what was the matter with his soldiers:
"Why couldn't they stand the strain," a plaintive voice replied, "We ain't so wild as you, Bill!"

On New Year's Day, Colonel "Bill"
Donovan will be fifty years old. Few men have led such a busy life as he has led. The numerous positions of trust that he has held, civil and military, and what he has accomplished
in each job is being told daily in The Freeman.

Other Noted Speakers

Besides Colonel Donovan, the speakers on Saturday night will include George Z. Medall, Republican nominee for United States Senator; Philip A. Goodwin, Republican nominee for Member of Congress from this district, and George B. Young,
a member of the National Republican Committee.

The Republican county candidates
also will be present and presented at the meeting. Those who will be introduced will be Senator Arthur H.
Wicks, candidate for re-election; J.
Edward Conway, candidate for Member of Assembly; Surrogate George F. Kaufman, candidate for re-election; John H. Saxe, candidate for sheriff; William W. McElhorne, candidate for county commissioner of public welfare, and Howard B.
Humiston, candidate for coroner.
County Chairman Philip Elting will preside over the meeting.

Arrangements have been made for an overflow meeting, outside the theatre, and Colonel Donovan will address that meeting also.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, JR., PLEDGES TO HOOVER

Manila, Oct. 28 (AP).—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., governor general of the Philippines, said today in a speech urging President Hoover's re-election that "to keep the United States American" is "the issue in the campaign."
"We will fight it out on these times," he said. "We do not wish
our country to be made a laboratory
for wholesale experiments in government ownership, tariff tinkering or currency inflation."

Roosevelt, son of the former president, lifelong Republican and distant cousin of Democratic Candidate Franklin D. Roosevelt, delivered into a microphone early this morning
the first campaign address broadcast from across the seas in American political history.

J. Edward Conway Has Background For Assembly

Republican Candidate for Assembly Interested in Civic Problems and Possesses Legal Background—Deeply Interested in Public Affairs—Is Now Assistant District Attorney and Successful Lawyer.

J. Edward Conway, the Republican candidate for assemblyman in Ulster county, is an outstanding example of what pluck, perseverance and hard work will accomplish in America. His candidacy appeals to the voter who wants to see Ulster county's best list of able representa-

Mr. Conway was born at Eddy-ville 30 years ago. His father, Patrick H. Conway, a well known competent, was active in the Knights of Labor, which was organized in that vicinity for Ulster county and whose ranks for many years were largely recruited from the men employed in and near Eddyville. Mr. Conway, senior, who is well remembered by surviving members of the Knights of Labor, was deeply interested in labor problems and thoroughly conversant with the labor situations and the numerous problems that labor had to face, especially in matters of state legislation for the improvement of labor conditions. J. Edward Conway has inherited his father's deep interest in all that pertains to labor
and the solution of labor problems.

After attending school at Eddy-ville and Kingston High School, J.
Edward Conway studied law at Fordham Law School, from which he was graduated with honor in 1924. He returned to Kingston at once to serve the clerkship required by law.
That clerkship was served in the office of Judge Joseph M. Fowler.
Upon his admission to the bar, Mr.
Conway became associated with Judge Fowler in the practice of the law. He continued that association
when the firm of Fowler & Connelly was formed, and the association has continued to the present.

In 1926 Mr. Conway was appointed clerk of the Ulster County Children's Court, and acted in that capacity until January 1, 1931, when he became assistant district attorney under District Attorney Cleon B. Murray.
He holds that position now.

Understands Business

Mr. Conway has devoted much time to the advocacy of practical business methods. He gratuitously represented the Central Business Men's Association at many public hearings before the common council and before the state legislature at Albany, and freely gave considerable of his time to represent their interests in the Broadway crossing elimination, both before the referee in this city and at Albany. He also gratuitously represented the Kingston Automotive Dealers' Association
before various legislative committees
at Albany on pending legislation.

In court and trial work Mr. Conway has demonstrated his devotion to the law, and has been unusually active in both branches of his professional work. Within less than a year from the time that he was admitted to the bar, he argued his first case before the Court of Appeals, an accomplishment which is the desire and pride of every lawyer.

There has been a succession of grand jury cases before the September and October grand juries and this work has taken up a large part of Mr. Conway's time since the primary election. His adherence to the work which he is being paid to do has prevented him from carrying on an active campaign, which other candidates are free to do, but voters appreciate his position fully.

Business Interests

In a business way Mr. Conway is interested in Raymond Conway & Company, plumbers, and is secretary of the Harp & Conway Construction Company, which is engaged in engineering and general construction work.
Mr. Conway has been actively interested in

Literary Digest Semifinal Returns

Roosevelt is shown holding his lead of 2 to 1 over Hoover in the semifinal returns of The Literary Digest's nationwide Presidential poll, according to tomorrow's issue of the magazine, which gives a tabulation of nearly 3,000,000 votes. This is a larger return, it is announced, than the final returns of the 1928 Literary Digest poll.

Of a total of 2,998,580 votes tallied, Roosevelt has 64.19 per cent or 1,928,237 votes while Hoover has 35.81 per cent or 1,070,343 votes, or 4.84 per cent of the total number counted.

Hoover shows a slight gain from 37.19 per cent of the total vote which he had last week.

Hoover continues to carry the seven states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey with only slight changes shown in the week's balloting in any of them.

Roosevelt continues to carry all of the other forty-one states.

With over 300,000 additional ballots received and counted during the past week mailed from every section of the country, neither candidate shows a gain or loss in any state of more than 1 per cent.

In a division of the vote for appointment in the Electoral College the semifinal returns would give Roosevelt 474 electoral votes to Hoover's 217.

The vote in New York continues to be closer than in any other state, although still carried by Roosevelt, making the outcome here still doubtful. Roosevelt is polling 167,844 votes to Hoover's 157,844, a very slight increase for the President over last week's returns.

The race is also close in Delaware, where Roosevelt's lead has been cut from a plurality of 102 votes last week to 175 votes this week out of a total of 4,997 cast in the state.

The returns from "State Unknown" divide 59.47 per cent for Roosevelt and 39.53 per cent for Hoover, which percentage is still in favor of the Democratic candidate's ratio for the country as a whole.

In an analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1928" Roosevelt is shown obtaining 37.19 per cent of his strength from former Republicans, which is an increase over the ratio he received in last week's returns. The same analysis indicates that Hoover is obtaining 30.61 per cent of his votes from former Republican ranks and 6.99 per cent from former Democrats, which ratios are practically the same as those reported last week.

It is revealed also that Roosevelt continues to obtain more votes from those who voted for his rival in 1928 than from members of his own party in the twelve states of California, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Roosevelt continues his lead in the Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania, where the vote is divided 199,954 Democrats and 50,955 Republicans.

Massachusetts still gives Hoover the largest plurality he receives in any state. He leads his Democratic rival here by a vote of 57,767 to 33,931. Governor Roosevelt continues to show a clear majority in thirty-nine states in the polling up-to-date.

Kansas, regarded by many as a doubtful state, now shows a vote of 27,757 for Roosevelt to 23,372 for Hoover.

In California, the home state of the President, the Democratic candidate has a lead of 143,534 to 77,975.

Texas, which was registered in the Hoover column four years ago, now shows a vote of over 4 to 1 Democratic.

"Already in this campaign," The Literary Digest will state editorially tomorrow, "our poll has been accused of favoring Hoover and also of favoring Roosevelt."

"As an old campaigner, The Digest is used to it, and makes allowances for politicians who may be a bit up in the air.

"Hoover still holds the same even status—the New England group and New Jersey—and Roosevelt still holds the other forty-one, plus State Unknown, which carries no electoral vote although its ballot strength hints that of Connecticut."

"Hoover's potential electoral vote, as indicated by our semifinal figures, stands unchanged at 57, Roosevelt's at 474."

"Several states where the vote is close may be fairly claimed as doubtful and may appear in the opposite column on November 5."

"They're the ones that the candidate candidates honor with visits and speeches. Literary Digest readers can have plenty of clean fun by checking up these tactics on both sides with our semifinal figures."

"You'll notice that the states honored with visits and speeches are fairly evenly balanced in the poll, also that they have large blocks of electoral votes. It is seldom that anybody bothers much about the states of scanty electoral votes."

"Meanwhile the campaign has plunged into its bare-knuckle stage—the crisis of that quadrangular fever which disrupts American life, and throws the best of neighbors into a cat and dog feud until the passing of Election Day releases them from the spell and allows them to see what jolly good fellows they've been shaking their fists at."

The semifinal returns of the 1928 Literary Digest poll showed Hoover leading in forty-four states and Smith in four. The figures forewarn that Mr. Hoover would capture four states of the "solid south"—Virginia, North Carolina, Texas and Florida—which he did in the election.

PLANS VS. PROMISES

Those who have either read or heard the campaign speeches of President Hoover and Candidate Roosevelt have had the opportunity to weigh carefully the merits of the men. In the addresses of President Hoover they have heard told simply and without any attempt at oratory what the country has faced and is facing and of the plans being carried out by the administration to hasten business recovery. On the other hand Governor Roosevelt has been speaking in glittering generalities, but when his talks have been thoughtfully digested they have slurred down to the plain fact that he has offered no solution of any of the problems facing the country today.

It is a wonder that men like Henry Ford and other business leaders with millions invested in plant and equipment believe that, irrespective of politics, a man of the stamp of President Hoover should be retained in office. The Democrats have raised the old cry that big business is backing the Republican administration, but they have failed to make it plain that the prosperity of the country rests on big business. It is big business that employs millions of men and women. With the gradual growth of the country since the days of the Civil War there has been a gradual and steady growth in business enterprises. To meet changing business conditions it has been necessary for business also to expand in order to more thoroughly carry on the business life of the nation.

It is to big business enterprises that the average man and woman must look for employment, and when business is booming jobs are plentiful. To big business it is not a matter of politics, it is a question of dollars and cents, and for that reason big business is favoring the retaining in office the man who has proven by his acts during this world-wide depression that he realizes its seriousness and has formulated plans to aid the country's recovery from its business ills.

The nation's prosperity is based on acts, not on promises. The curing of the business ills of the country is something that vitally affects every man, woman and child in the nation. Governor Roosevelt during the time that he has occupied the governor's chair at Albany has had plenty of opportunity to carry into practice some of the theories he is now advancing so fluently. Has he done so? A man must be judged by his record.

The campaign is fast drawing to a close. The voters on November 8 have the opportunity to decide whether they want to place at the head of the national government a man who has based his acts and decisions on plain common sense, or whether they desire to turn the government over to a man who has not advanced a single solution of any of the problems facing the nation, but who has been lavish in promises.

WHO IS OUR NEIGHBOR?

Along the broad highways in this section of New York State there have been erected huge signboards asking people to vote for "Our Neighbor" Franklin D. Roosevelt for president. The request is based upon: "Neighbor" grounds only. There is no other reason.

To the men and women who ask what Roosevelt really would do about the reconstruction work that is being carried on by President Hoover, the only answer is "Neighbor." To the men and women who ask whether Roosevelt would boost the cost of government in the United States in the same way that he boosted it in New York State and then lay the blame on counties, towns, cities and villages, the sign only says "Neighbor." To the inquirer who wants to know whether Roosevelt, if elected president, would "stay on the job" in the same way that he has stayed in Albany while governor, the sign replies "Neighbor." If anyone asks to what extent Roosevelt has planned to turn the work of government over to "Neighbor John" Garner, and looks to the signboard for an answer, what does he find? Quoth the signboard, "Neighbor."

Does "Neighbor" answer the many questions that arise in the minds of the people who are thinking and looking ahead for themselves and their children? If Governor Roosevelt has been the kind of neighbor that needs signboards to remind that fact publicly, what have been his neighborly acts? Is it not true that his attitude as neighbor has been the same that he displayed as governor? "Me and My Ambitions" have come first and last. The sandwich filling has been composed of sarcasm, criticism, promises and oily words, spread over some very tough taxes for which he says "local governments" are responsible. Yet the signboard continues to request us to vote for our "Neighbor." Shall we put our neighbor ahead of our country?

HEARTS

I frequently speak of the greyhound and the bull-dog type of build in men. The greyhound type is the tall slender individual and the bull-dog type is thick set with long body, and legs a little shorter than the average for other individuals who are not of the pronounced greyhound or bull-dog type.

In our student days we were taught to map out on the chest the underlying heart by means of the type of sound caused by striking the chest with the fingers or a little hammerlike instrument. We thus learned what were the normal limits of the heart under the breast bone and ribs. Thus if a heart were smaller or larger than what was considered normal a note was made of it.

However now that physicians are considering the different types of build it has been found that in persons of average build, 90 per cent of hearts are within normal limits. Among those of slender build the width of the heart is below 10 per cent of the normal in 12 per cent of the cases. Among those of thick set build the width or diameter of the heart is above plus 10 per cent in 11 per cent of the cases.

In other words the fact that in a certain percentage of the slender the heart is narrower than normal, and wider in the thickset must now be remembered.

Another interesting point brought out by Dr. H. A. Treadgold and H. L. Barton, Great Britain, was the large number of abnormally small hearts (22 per cent) among cases where the strength of the heart was below normal in striking contrast to the very small proportion (4 per cent) of hearts below normal in strength in those who were thickset.

While there may be fewer cases of high blood pressure among those of slender build, nevertheless increased or hearts below normal in strength are commonest in those of slender build.

What can you do about your heart and the strengthening of it if you or your youngster, are of slender build?

For yourself a brisk walk daily will actually strengthen your heart, and render you less liable to a "weak" heart.

For your youngster, plenty of play outdoors, particularly play that involves leg work or running. Leg exercises, by making the heart pump the blood to the large muscles of the legs, gradually and safely increase the power of the heart.

Consequently, it is divided with men and every generation. Even if a man kills a colony in self-defense his own life is saved.

A PATH TO PARADISE

BY JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.
 CHAPTER II
 SANTA ATTACKS FIRST
 DURING the journey from New York to the Davis home in Newark the most of epidemic which Clive had cultivated followed. He had worshipped the girl as a goddess. There had been no sacrifice he would not have made for her. And now to him to her parents that he had over-harbored such tenderness would produce a scandal.

He was aware of the pain he was causing long before he alighted. What had brought him? Curiosity and an instinct more magnanimous: he had to learn that all was well with her.

The same pleasant room in which he had made his breach with Santa. ("Till you're satisfied sampling, count me out.") Eric Davis, his guardian, to whom he'd been almost a son, killing the fatted calf for him. Mrs. Davis propitiously determinedly gracious. Cocktails abated.

He could restrain himself no longer.

"How is Santa?"

Mrs. Davis replied, turning her back to straighten a lampshade which required no straightening.

"She arrived home today on her first visit since her wedding. She'll be down in a moment."

Clive braced himself.

Then Santa advanced demurely and preoccupied. Utterly pale.

A lovely ghost—that was how she impressed him. Her eyes downcast. Cool as marble.

His hostility crumbled. The "Then shall you" of the Deceit became gentle murmuring.

With startled candor she asked a cigarette.

"Who has a match? Hello Clive!"

For the first time she seemed to notice him. "Do you still carry a lighter?"

His hand trembled.

"Hold it steady," she requested. She glanced up with lurking mischief.

Dinner was announced. He found himself seated opposite her. Conversation took the form of questions regarding how he had spent his absence.

"It was more of you to pay off like that," Santa took a hand.

"Like what?" He jerked upright.

"Never advising Mummy or Daddy and only telephoning me at the last moment."

"No doubt Clive had his reasons." Her father strove to avoid controversy.

"But when I saw him off," she persisted unabashed, "it was agreed that he would write."

Again her father came to the rescue.

"Probably he realized that backlogs don't correspond with other men's fancies."

"But must a girl lose all her friends?" She gazed whimsically into Clive's eyes. "Mummy actually thought you wouldn't want to meet me."

"My dear Santa," Clive felt that he was grasping like a horse-collar.

"In reply to your devastating frankness, I'd be glad to meet you at the North Pole, if that was the rendezvous you appointed."

The temper to a two-up had blown over. Amiable chatting was resumed. But the conversation was why she had pretended that she was the one who had a cause for grievance. Her poles was disconcerting. In continually returning to the sore topic of her marriage, she must have some object. Beneath her gay mockery Clive detected the strain of nerves.

"I read a description of the great event," he replied with gravity.

"Where? Do tell us."

The couple sat with his shining candle lit. He saw himself arriving in Vienna, a city "blessed" for his lovely women, dreaming only of the woman. He relived the dead agony. Days dragging by. Rooms for her absence, all of them to her credit. God, he'd been up! There a bridegroom's job was to care a salary and he'd wanted to buy his house of pretty things when she joined him, he'd paid himself together.

Falling himself together had seemed a desperate task. Vienna, Budapest, Brussels with constant anxiety that starting she should she might have said "I'm a girl." It had been planned to think of her coming on a dash to London as an unexcused truant. And this day coming was his reward for that tenderness!

"Where?" He heard himself saying, "It was on a driving night. I'd been summoned to Paris on business. We were in a cab, when an American rose from a neighboring table, having noticed him a New York paper. I reached for it. A portrait of you as a bride confronted me."

"And even then you didn't read me a present."

"You should have seen her green!" Her mother sought to create a diversion.

A graceless story followed.

"But you're forgetting the high spot," Clive maliciously capped the anecdote. "The best man, according to the account I read, was required to be worth twelve millions."

Mrs. Davis, who sat forgetting during his wife's bragging, pushed back her chair.

"We were plastered with dollar signs, my boy. Like the plants that decorated the church, they were all snatched back next morning."

They adjourned to the library for coffee.

Mrs. Davis palmed Clive's arm.

"What Santa said was true—we've all felt more than a little hurt by your neglect."

"Being given my chance," he feigned contrition, "made me careless—a little high-brow. As a contrast man for my firm in Europe where everyone has something to sell, I was treated as important. And then there were distractions."

"For instance?" Mrs. Davis encouraged.

"You might call them temptations. In Vienna not to be romantic it is to be dead from the heels on. They're not ashamed over there as we are, of so many things that are natural. It was an eat, drink and be merry sort of life. Everybody indulged. Looking back," he had extricated, "it seems that last year is the only one in which I was ever young."

"That's no secret to me," Mrs. Davis smiled triumphantly. "Till Santa was 12 I educated her abroad, as you know. Often I close my eyes and dream myself back to Rome, Venice, the Riviera. Sunshine, beauty and music with guitars, howling the sea-coast. It was pleasant. European do what we did here I think."

"So what I claim is that Europeanized Americans shouldn't be judged by our standards. They've been trained to be happy, whereas we demand that they shall be ecstatic. By the way, talking of Europeanized Americans, did you ever hear Santa's husband mentioned? He lived for some time in Vienna."

Had he? Dicky Dak was still a purple patch in the American office's memory.

Never without a girl and always a good teacher. A free-spirited, lavish spender. Handsome. Dapper. Gifted beyond the ordinary; but cursed with an aversion for industry. He'd deflected himself on several occasions by making his intention to marry the fortune rather than the heiress a trifle too obvious.

Mr. Davis relieved him.

"My dear Judy, you don't expect Clive to peckle gossip."

His wife squirmed. She a moment whose tail had been trodden on.

"You're ridiculous, Mrs. Davis. I don't inquire how we are to learn?"

"The time for inquiry," Mr. Davis spoke sternly, "was before Santa's engagement. Then, according to you, my desire to question Dak was fancy interference. She married blindly, poor child. Whatever may be the consequence, this business of gossiping doesn't mend matters."

All eyes were turned on the poor child. She met their scrutiny restlessly, as though annoyed by their concern for her.

"What's poor about me, Daddy?"

"Nothing, perhaps. I don't know. I only suspect."

She continued with her embarrassed air. It was exactly as though she had rebuffed him for saying, "Concealing his love of dignity, her father held out his hand to Clive."

"Sorry to bid you good-night. I have letters."

He wrote rose with him.

At the door she addressed Santa, lowering her voice.

"You see, it's as I told you. He blames me."

(Copyright 1932-1933, Dorothy Burt)

Clive turned the truth upon Santa and Santa, however, just said what she had to say.

In Eastern United States droves of passenger pigeons once lived in such great numbers that they are said to have been the most plentiful bird in the world. In 1914 the last one known to live died in the Zoological Garden of Cincinnati. The birds, because of their nesting habits, fell easy prey to pioneer hunters and early settlers. Natural enemies and wholesale invasion of their nesting grounds by hunters finally resulted in extinction of the passenger pigeon.

One naturalist, in 1893, estimated a flock in Kentucky to contain more than 2,000,000,000 birds. In 1913 another writer described a great flock of the pigeons passing over one place for three successive days in numbers so great that the sky was darkened.

Lutherans Celebrate Reformation Day

Sunday the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will join with the 80,000,000 Lutherans throughout the world in celebrating Reformation Day, the Birthday of Protestantism, for it was on October 31 that Dr. Martin Luther nailed his 95 Theses on the church door of the University Church at Wittenburg, Germany, questioning some of the doctrines and practices of the Medieval Church. At the morning service the pastor, the Rev. O. K. Brandorf, will preach on the topic, "A Religious Declaration of Emancipation."

The first "Question Night" for the season will be held Sunday evening at which time the following questions will be answered by the pastor:

Is there a hell beside that which man makes for themselves on earth? Must a Christian give up evil companions? Are we not told to save the lost?

My children refuse to go to church. What can I do to make them go?

Which is the first church? How was the Bible formed? Do you believe in early marriage? What is meant by the Means of Grace?

The Senior Luther League will go to Saginaw Friday evening to play a return game of dart baseball with the Saginaw Church Luther League. The local league defeated the Saginaw league at the games played here several weeks ago.

The Brotherhood is planning for a big meeting Tuesday evening, November 1.

CIRCULATING LIBRARY AND STAMP DEPARTMENT

W. S. Bam, the picture frame man at 787 Broadway, desires to inform the public that he has enlarged the picture framing department of his store, and has added a circulating library under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Bam.

The very latest books of fiction, western and mystery will be found in the library at all times, as well as all popular weekly and monthly magazines.

A new department of interest to Philatelists is the stamp collection department which carries a large line of foreign and United States stamps. Also albums and collectors' supplies, also a new approval service department.

The combination of book shop, framing department and stamp department forms an ideal combination for giving the type of service long needed in this community, says Mr. Bam.

The way to end the business slump is to get everybody to work. says one congressman. Now isn't it funny, no one thought of that before?

Wife (at desk)—I've been asked for a reference for our last maid. I've said she's lazy, unambitious and impertinent. Now am I adding anything to her favor?

Husband—You might say she's got a good appetite and sleeps well.

Tacks . . . How much alike people are in general outline, but how different in detail . . . If, as is said, Nature abhors a vacuum, why does she create so many? . . . People who bury the hatchet don't need a marker to remember the burying place . . . Truth is stranger than fiction—also sadder and less interesting . . . Amusement is the happiness of those who cannot think . . . Some women seek to attract attention by trying to look miserable . . . There's something good, even so, about anyone who does his job well . . . Consider well your own faults and you will have less to say about the faults of others. . . .

Get It Done.

It isn't the job we intended to do. Or the labor we've just begun. That puts us right on the balance sheet.

It's the work we have really done. Our credit is built upon things we do. Our debt on things we shirk. The man who totals the biggest plus is the man who completes his work. Good intentions do not pay our bills. It's easy enough to plan. To wish is the play of an office boy. To do is the work of a man.

When a man buys a round trip ticket he thinks he's covered all the expense of the trip, but he forgets that his wife will have to buy a trunkful of new clothes.

Sandy—How much to the station? Taxi Driver—Fifty cents, sir. Sandy—Does that include the charge for my bags? Taxi Driver—I'll take those for nothing. Sandy—Excellent. Then I'll walk.

Something to Think About: In this period of depression 30,000,000 families in the good old United States of America are spending over $1,000,000 a day for newspapers and over one billion dollars a week for the necessities and luxuries of life. These figures seem to differentiate the newspaper from every other form of advertising media.

Evrya—Oh, Josh's so wonderful—he's generous, polite, self-sacrificing, modest, religious and extremely affectionate. He doesn't smoke, gamble, drink or look at other women. But just my luck, he's married.

Mattie—Don't worry, dearie; no woman will stay married to a freak like that.

Truth is a Nutsball! The reason some folks never have any luck is because they spend too much time wishing on a load of hay, or looking at the moon over their right shoulder.

Mary—I hear you intend to teach after you are graduated. Carrie—Yes, and I have the man already picked out.

The best way to meet the present situation is to do the best we can accept what comes and be thankful that it is no worse.

A wealthy society lady had just engaged a new maid and was instructing her in the duties of waiting on the table.

Society Lady—At dinner, Mary, you must remember always to serve from the left and take the plates from the right. Is that clear? New Maid—Yes, ma'am. What's the matter, superstitious or something?

Justice is a bigger surprise these days than a miscarriage of justice.

The Moss Furniture Syndicate, 333 Summit Ave., Greensboro, North Carolina.

Results of Education In a study of 50 graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology it was shown that there is a definite correlation between scientific ability and income. Taking graduates of the years 1897 to 1920, from the start the money-makers stood out as men of the upper fifth of the class. Three years out of college they averaged $2,000 annually and at 10 years $3,000. In contrast, the lowest fifth made $1,700 at three years and $2,000 at ten years.

The Dramatic Life Story OF COLONEL DONOVAN "Fighting Bill" DONOVAN

Donovan Thorough in All Undertakings; Excels as Lawyer, Actor and Horseman

"Fighting Bill" Adept in Every Activity Arousing His Interest

BILL DONOVAN entered Columbia Law School in 1905. While some of his college classmates continued with him through the law course, he found many who came to this leading law school from colleges throughout the country. One of the old classmates who continued on with him was George Z. Medallie, who is the Republican nominee for U. S. Senator in the current campaign. Another, who came to the law class from Harvard, was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Medallie, like Donovan, was working his way. Reminiscing classmates recall that Donovan showed interest only in the so-called live phases of the law and had little patience with its remote antecedents. To him the law was important to the extent that it was applicable to the happiness and welfare of the people. He secured his law degree in 1909.

In 1909 he returned to Buffalo to engage in practice. The firm into which he was taken by John L. O'Brien, had a number of large insurance companies among its clients. The newest member of the firm's staff was assigned to do trial work. In this he engaged with marked success and before long the major portion of the firm's trial work was entrusted to Donovan.

THRIVES ON ACTION

It is related that from the hour that he turned from the theory of the courtroom to the actualities of the bar, he began to mount. In the light of subsequent events, his friends point out, this proved their contention that Bill Donovan thrives on action.

He was indefatigable in the preparation of a case, and his memory for details was so marked as to attract attention. He also had a faculty, still counted one of his outstanding virtues, for handling preliminary red-tape. This earned for him the approval of judges and juries. Many complimentary stories were soon going the rounds among members of the bar about his irrefutable logic, his engaging personality, and the post-hoc success of his magnificent voice which, it is said, continued to ring convincingly in jurors' ears after they had retired for their deliberations.

So marked were his qualities of person and address that, for a very brief period, his career as a lawyer was threatened by a call from another field. His professional activities brought him into contact with Buffalo's younger set in society and before long their importunities led him to become a member of their dramatic club.

"BUT" AS ACTOR

Here, as elsewhere, Donovan was soon leading the parade, and his fame spread. So much so, that during a visit to Buffalo, the famous actress, Eleanor Robson, later beloved for her great philanthropies as Mrs. August Belmont, did a performance with the handsome amateur as her leading man. But the applause of public and press did not turn Bill to the stage. Acting was, after all, make-believe, worthy in its way, but far divorced from realities. He turned from theatricals to his law work with greater zest.

It is said that some was so disappointed at the poetry-loving, declamatory-heralding Timothy Donovan, who never forgot that young Bill had won a model reciting one of his favorite poems. But if he felt any disappointment over the fact that his son chose the more prosaic field of the law, he kept it from Bill. Timothy Donovan was a dreamer to the last. His son, born in a more practical age, combined his dream with the call to material service.

The Donovans were now a prosperous family. They had moved to a larger home, distant from the First Ward. The demand of Bill's business required that he live nearer his clients. They were now called not only on Bill, but on brother Timothy, the physician. The young man prospered and was rapidly earning positions of eminence in the eyes of the members of their respective professions.

ROMANCE ENTERS

Although Bill Donovan was busy carving out a career, he had infrequent but enchanting glimpses of one of Buffalo's fairest daughters, the lovely Ruth Ramsey. Ruth was the daughter of the wealthy Dexter P. Ramsey. There was that about the girl which fired his imagination—she was one of the most daring equestrians in that part of the state. Stories of her escapades on horseback and of her hair-raising encounters with spirited animals were frequent. The dash and daring of the beautiful girl appealed to the restless Bill, long before he met her formally.

There are a dozen versions as to the reason for his joining Buffalo's Cavalry Troop 1. But his more romantic friends prefer the one given here. They declare that, while his usual foray in every siege, war or war, he decided that if ever he was to make an impression on Buffalo's beautiful Centaurian, he would have to become a horseman.

DASHING ATTACK

There is a story told in Buffalo society to this day which is illustrative of Donovan's dash and quick thinking. It was while he was captain that the troop, in full equipment, paraded through the city. The streets were lined with onlookers and, it is supposed, Ruth Ramsey was somewhere along the line of march. Captain Donovan was on his spirited charger on the outside of the column nearest the sidewalk curb. A band of roughs were loitering in front of a saloon.

One of the saloon gang eyed the figure at the head of the troop with malevolent derision. Capping his hands he gave vent to an offensive sound, identified in certain quarters as a "Bronx cheer." If Captain Donovan was not disturbed by this form of attack, his high-strung steed was. It reared to its haunches. The rider managed to keep his saddle in the approved manner, but his elbow clattered to the ground. The offending rowdy, bent on adding injury to insult, stooped, grasped the sword and hurled it into the saloon.

With hundreds of eyes upon him, Captain Donovan swung into action. He wheeled his horse about and at a job of his spurs caused his mount to clear the sidewalk and ride through the saloon's swinging doors. A gasp went up from the crowd. A moment later this was followed by a cheer when Captain Donovan, still in the saddle, emerged on the street. He had his sword, and in one strong hand hung the struggling form of the offender. He deposited him in the gutter and, without turning his head, rode on. This was late in 1911.

"SMALL" WEDDING

It was soon after that Captain Donovan proposed marriage to Ruth Ramsey. The couple were married by Monsignor Bruden of Buffalo at the Ramsey home on July 15, 1914. Dr. Timothy Donovan, to whom one refers for the details of the wedding, informed the writer that it was a "small affair," that only about sixty or seventy friends and relatives were present.

Timothy and Anna Donovan were there, too. It was the last joyful experience of their self-sacrificing lives, this marriage of their eldest into one of Buffalo's most prominent families. Timothy and Anna Donovan were to pass but within the year, to join their pioneering parents.

All the city applauded this marriage which meant the joining of two families, each of which, from socially polar extremes, had in its own way helped make the Western Metropolis of the Empire State.

The next chapter will relate Colonel Donovan's war experiences.

Chlor Apple Market Not Hard Hit.

Shelton, Oct. 27.—Although the prices of many farm products appear to have hit the bottom during the present slump, the chlor apple market is not quite so bad as might be. In October, 1919, these "red" apples were bringing eight cents a bushel when delivered at the railroad siding; today, some of our farmers are getting ten cents a bushel in bags at the farm door. The reason for this comparatively strong chlor apple situation probably lies in the fact that chlor vintners are popular.

ity despite the introduction of white, or green-shelled "wagons." Again, it may be attributable to prohibition, which reform movement possibly has caused many more persons to look with favor upon the juice of the apple.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press
Tenth Edition.

Boston—Imagine Mrs. F. I. Harker dismay when she discovered she had paid taxes erroneously for several years on a neighbor's property. Sadder still, the neighbor had neglected to make the same payments on her property. City council solved the tangle by transferring the payments to Mrs. Harker's account.

Family Landslide

Cincinnati—An announcement by J. O. Meeks that the Meeks family of Cincinnati is "going Republican" brings joy to that party. There are three generations in the family, and they have 52 votes.

John Is Game

Oklahoma City—Although paralyzed from the hips down from an injury in a neighborhood football game, John Taylor, 16, still cherishes the ambition to make his high school team next season. "I knew I didn't have a chance this year," he said from his hospital bed, "so I was trying to get in shape for next year. And I'll be in there, too." Physicians expressed belief he would recover.

A Tip From Judge

Pittsburgh—Prohibition agents, looking through the windows of a social club, said they saw and smelled wine.

Federal Judge Schoonmaker, dismissing a motion to quash the "sight and smell" evidence, held: "If the club members desired to be free from observation and prevent odors from escaping their quarters, they should have kept the windows closed and the shades down."

She Got Her Man

Britten, S. D.—Mrs. Theodore Stogot her man along with 35 gallons of alcohol and an automobile.

Mrs. Stogot, a deputy sheriff and wife of the sheriff of Marshall county, received a telephone call that a liquor runner was headed for Britten from Lake City. Her husband being out, she hopped into a car, caught up with the suspect, poked a pistol into his ribs, took his liquor and car and called it a day.

The arrested man said he was Edward Krule.

George Won't Learn

Stella, Neb.—It's too bad it wasn't the day before Thanksgiving, but it's good enough anyway. A spectator at a ball game got up and started swinging his arms, betting down three games that were foolish enough to try so low over a baseball lot.

No Foulled Undertaker

Freeman, S. D.—Michael Hefer's "borrowed time" lasted for 17 years. At 24, while living in Russia, he was aroused from a coma after he had been pronounced dead. Yesterday he died at the ripe old age of 183 years. One of his boasts was that he had never been in debt.

Is It a White House?

Peoria, Ill.—In Washington Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis live in separate houses, but not in Peoria. Election commissioners discovered that John Hoover and Charles Curtis both live in the same house on Hewett street.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Cabin in the Cotton"—Richard Barthelmess contributes one of his finest performances in this story of the old south. It's a play that delves into the social scheme of things, for Mr. Barthelmess, in the role of a southern boy who is classed as white trash, finds bitterness and injustice between the wealthy plantation owners and the poor whites.

There is also a romantic background in which the southern boy's heart is linked with a girl of his own people, and also the daughter of a wealthy planter. The excitement is acute in some parts of the play, and from first to last, this tale must be classed as an outstanding achievement. The scenery is beautiful, the acting superlative, and the plot realistic and entertaining. Others in the supporting cast are Bette Davis, Dorothy Jordan, Henry B. Walthall, Hardie Albright, and David Landau. Orpheum: "Honor in the Family" and "Mystery Ranch". Babe Daniels and Warren William are the featured players in the first attraction, a romantic love tale with plenty of excitement. "Mystery Ranch" is a western thriller with George O'Brien and Victor McLaglen.

Broadway: "False Faces" with Lila Lee, Lowell Sherman and Peggy Shannon. This story has a different sort of screen plot, with Lowell Sherman in the role of a great plastic surgeon, who remodels ugly faces of women into beautiful ones.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Off and On With Your Sleeves

New York—What a convenience to be able to remove one's sleeves with one's hat if it so happens that the night's affairs take us from a semi-formal dinner to a formal dance. It's one of these believe-it-or-not sort of fashions seen about these nights, and made possible by the use of a guimp.

If you are the type that can wear fuchsia, lose no time in getting yourself a fuchsia evening dress. They are tremendously smart, as are all members of the purple family whether they are reds or not. Burgundy and the deeper wines for evening, although so dark, are also good, but this is because we are reverting back to the darker street shades, including copper, browns, bronze, greens and sapphire, sapphire being especially well liked.

A sort of unwritten rule is that when fabrics are dull, colors are bright, and the other way about. Dull velvets are greatly liked in vibrant shades, not exclusive of orange or red.

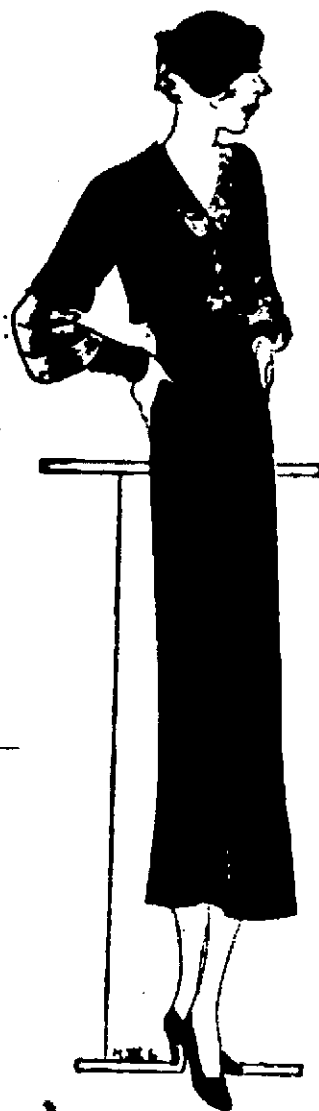

Another news item concerning evening fashions is that white coats are being advocated, many of these banded around the sleeves at least with dark furs, silver fox especially.

So many women hesitate to adopt the high waisted dress that no wonder there is a demand for dresses on the order of the one shown, the high waisted effect being as much a matter of suggestion as of anything else. The bolero does it. When it is removed—everything is removable these days—a princess dress is revealed.

A touch of silver, either sequins or something of the sort, or embroidery or a contrasting fabric on the sleeves, is a generally accepted fashion. Copper rivals silver, copper sequins also being used.

If you are dressing rather formally, be sure your purse is formal too. Some of them are quite brilliantly ornamented, and velvet, slipper satin and fur are all available in the smart shops. Marcasite is the usual trimming.

THE BOLERO AGAIN

Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild

Black triple sheer crepe is chosen for this dress, with an effective trimming in drawn-work and French knots.

Suit Woolens for Dresses

The heavy woolens used in dresses of the import groups have made a definite impression and are something new.

Heavy woolens, heavy enough for suits, are being cut in dresses. The general trend this season toward increasingly thick and soft textures, in type.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The evening gown with braaiers built in the bodice to conform with the low décolletage of the gown, is an attractive idea.

Also for evening, separate shoulder capelets of velvet or crepe, with fox scarfs draped on them, are a feature of the collection of a Paris fur house.

Mother's Cook Book

GOOD SOUPS

A soup is always a part of the meal that we feel should never be omitted. It warms the stomach and prepares it for the heartier foods that follow and is of itself a nourishment when prepared with cream and vegetables.

Squash Soup.

Mix together one cupful of boiled squash that has been mashed and put through a colander, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one tablespoonful of salt and sugar, one tablespoonful of onion juice, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a pinch of mace. Prepare two tablespoonfuls of butter and four mixed together. Add a little of a quart of milk, stir until well blended, then add the remainder and heat slowly. Heat the squash until light and mix with the other ingredients. Heat very hot and serve at once.

Meek Soups.

Scald one quart of milk with three-fourths of a cupful of bread crumbs, one small onion stuck with six cloves, a sprig of parsley and a bit of bay leaf. Remove the seasonings and rub through a sieve. Add two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of canned tomatoes and cook fifteen minutes. Reheat the milk and bring to the boiling point. Add the tomatoes, stirring gently. Add one-third of a cupful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne. Serve with croutons.

Pea Soup.

This is so simple that a child may prepare it. Take one can each of pea soup and canned milk, or rich sweet milk if at hand. Mix well, heat and serve hot with croutons.

In the making of soups as in any other food preparation much depends upon the cook. All ingredients should be carefully measured, seasoning appropriate should be added. Mace, cloves, nutmeg, thyme, bay leaf all play an important part. The same ingredients blended with lack of care may be flat, stale and insipid, or a royal feast. A teaspoonful of sugar brings out the flavor of many of the vegetables and is an addition to most soups.

Brown Tweed Suit

One of the latest fashions for fall wear is this brown tweed suit, for traveling, with three-quarter swag coat and huge bow scarf of beaver. The handbag is of the suit material.

FALL BRINGS NEW NOTE IN SWEATERS

The vogue for suits this fall has brought all sorts of new ideas in sweaters in its wake. Every woman who has a tweed or knitted suit wants to vary it with at least three blouses, and one of these is sure to be a sweater. The latest in sports sweaters are gay plaids, combining the costume color with bright contrasting shades. These sweaters appeal to the school and college girl—for you can't get too much color on the campus. They are very simply styled, for their gay patterns are sufficiently decorative without further elaboration. One especially smart one, in a bright green, red and yellow plaid, for wear with a green tweed suit, has a high crew neckline, fastened with three buttons. It is finished at the waistline with a wide ribbed band, and the slightly full sleeve has a tight ribbed cuff.

Another favorite with the school and college set is the crew-necked slip-over, usually in hand knit effect in solid color. This is youthful and practical, and is worn in color to contrast with the skirt.

Paris Sets Out Show of New Winter Modes

Cosmetic hats are displayed in Paris centers of fashion, with a form-fitting silhouette as the last word in winter styles. Black and colored felt hats are to be worn tipped over the forehead with virtually straight cloth.

The new silhouette shows shorter skirts, 12 inches from the ground, and has plain bodices and sleeves. The skirts are emphasized by widened and padded shoulders, with the waistline high in front and dropped decidedly in back.

Knitted stocking caps, with a high rolled rim, the outstanding headgear with sports wear. The colors are smoke blue, bracken blue, cabbage red, gammon red and puce gray.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A Pretty House Style

7675. Printed silk, lace or net is suggested for this very pleasing model. It will also look well in chiffon, printed or plain, or in combination. The sleeve is new and very popular. The cow collar is one that is becoming to every figure. It may be finished with or without the plaited trim.

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require 1 1/4 yard of 39 inch material, together with 1/4 yard of contrasting material and 1 1/4 yard of machine plaiting for the collar. If made in monochrome it will require 2 yards of 39 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Nests of Flamingoes. The flamingoes build strange looking nests in low, marshy areas. To avoid rising water they mold cones of mud a foot or more in height. These are hollowed at the apex to accommodate one or two eggs.

Shokan, Oct. 27.—Tennis Vanderbeest and son, Sidney, of New York City, spent the week-end at the Vanderbeest country place on the mountain road.

Sidney K. Clapp and William Goldsboro, of the engineering staff of the board of water supply, were callers here on Wednesday.

Charles Green, enterprising food and grain dealer, had the misfortune to lose one of his valuable horses recently. The animal injured itself on a wire and became paralyzed in its hind quarters.

Twenty-one garments were made by the women who attended the community meeting held under the auspices of the Home Bureau and Red Cross in the village hall on Wednesday. Miss Evelyn Nance of Kingston brought the materials here and took an active part in the cutting and sewing done at the meeting. The garments when finished up by the ladies at their homes will be collected by a state welfare agent and distributed by them to needy families in the town of Otis. Those who were unable to be present at the meeting on Wednesday may leave donations of clothing at Winchell's store for distribution with the other garments. Those who came out for the sewing bee were as follows: Evelyn Nance, county Home Bureau agent; Mrs. Arthur Sayder and Mrs. Herman Weidner of West Shokan; Miss Edna Longyear, Mrs. George VanderOrten, Mrs. C. A. Winchell, Mrs. Fred Adair, Mrs. Elwyn Winchell and Mrs. Ira Elmendorf of Shokan; Mrs. Floyd Morrihew, Mrs. Raymond Markle, Mrs. George Stekler and Mrs. John Brooks of Ashokan. It is planned to hold another meeting of the kind later in the winter if conditions warrant the making of more clothing for the needy families of the town.

A local marriage of October 27, 1930, was that of Burton Feeny to Ada Berry, both of whom were residents of the Boiceville section. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles G. Gorse, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church at the time and witnesses to the nuptials were Margaret Buck and Maude A. Gorse. Mr. and Mrs. Feeny still make their home in Boiceville.

Mrs. David Wendt and Herman Wendt motored up from New York city and spent Sunday at their place in the village. Herman was given the glad hand by all the boys, among whom he is very popular.

Judging by the number of campaign cards and posters which decorate the trees, poles and buildings of the reservoir section, office seekers have never before been so plentiful with this kind of political advertisement. Some of the steno-graphers obligingly stick up every card handed to them, regardless of the candidate's politics and their own personal leanings. Some of the ladies, after gazing upon one of these impressive collections, express surprise that there are "so many good looking men in Ulster county."

The chicken supper originally planned for election day night in the Redwood Church hall will be held on Tuesday evening, November 1.

Miss Jane Bogart, one of the oldest residents of this section, paid a visit to the village recently. Although enjoying good health for one of her advanced years, Mrs. Bogart does not get to town as frequently as her many friends would like to have her do. This estimable lady has made her home on the same farm along the mountain road for more than half a century.

Members of the local Home Bureau who plan to make their own greeting cards for Christmas and New Years, are anticipating with no little interest the coming lesson on November 9, of the series on making attractive articles with black and paint. The meeting will take place at 10:30 a. m., at the home of Mrs. George Sickler in Ashokan.

"Sherlock Holmes"

Spare yourself that unnecessary hardship

Here is a new way to escape it

That arduous task known as washday back which comes from washing in the old-fashioned way, is needless. Try Oxydol and discover how much quicker and easier washing can be. Oxydol is a wonderful new soap discovery. It has 50% more scrubbing power than SOAPS clothes clean in any water—hard or soft—but or cold. Its richer cream makes Oxydol an economy too. And it's great for dishes—and kind to hands. Ask your grocer today for the big blue and orange half-boxes.

Come on up to the Height of health

YOU'VE enjoyed days where every minute was filled with the richness of living. You looked your best, and felt your best. Why not live more of these healthy, happy days?

One of the chief causes of poor health—and consequent unhappiness—is common constipation. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet it can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to gently exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that in leafy vegetables. One ounce of ALL-BRAN furnishes as much vitamin B as five ounces of orange juice. This delicious cereal also contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Tests show ALL-BRAN does not lose its effectiveness with continued use. How different from pills and drugs—where dosage has to be constantly increased. Ask your grocer for the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"When you're healthy, you're happy"

"How you feel—and how well you look—depends largely upon the food you eat. Be sure your diet is balanced—with sufficient 'bulk' to promote regularity."

Kiwanis Hears About Citizen And the Court

J. Edward Conway, assistant district attorney of Ulster county and Republican candidate for member of assembly, spoke to members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon on "The Citizen and the Courts."

Conway, who was introduced by the president of the club, Dr. Raymond S. Crispell, chairman of the program committee, introduced Mr. Conway to the club as a prominent young lawyer well known to the surrounding country, who was a candidate in the coming election for assembly, but who would talk on a non-political subject to members of the club.

Mr. Conway opened his remarks by explaining that there were two general mistakes made by the average citizen in connection with the courts: one, a feeling of awe which seemingly made the court beyond reproach, and two, the blind criticism which was often leveled at the court, often without cause and offering no constructive solution to the problem.

He explained that constructive criticism was welcomed by the courts, because it was not perfect, but that blind arguments were of little use to anyone, certainly not to a group of men who were seeking to mete out justice to the best of their ability.

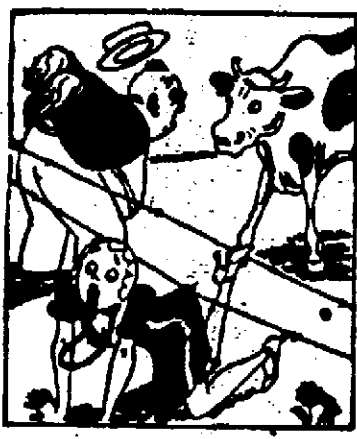

The speaker then traced the history of trial, beginning with the physical combat, and continuing through the stages of challenge to battle, imposition of rules for challenge by combat, institution of a referee for challenge by combat, trial by ordeal, the hearing of the arguments of the accused, the determination of guilt by friends of the accused, the determination of guilt by twelve men, and finally the present system of trial by jury.

"We have a duty to perform—and that is to serve on the jury when we are called," said the speaker. "This will often require a sacrifice on our part, but it will greatly aid in obtaining justice. Your club's program includes the furthering of civil service, and I say to you that one of the ways you may do this is by serving on a jury when called. Any of you may find yourself in a court some day and you will desire a fair trial with every aid that the constitution guarantees—one of them an intelligent jury composed of men who understand practical psychology and are capable of giving a fair and impartial decision—and so it is your duty when called to serve and aid others in obtaining just as fair a trial as you would want."

Closing Mr. Conway requested that those present strive "to combat this purely destructive criticism, which is neither good for the court nor the success of the jury system."

Paul Zucca led several songs during the meeting.

Insubordinate Smith

By JOHN RATHBONE

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, Inc.

"GOOD morning, Smith," Mr. Lawrence said, and looked inquiringly at the clock on the wall at the end of the large office. It was five minutes after nine o'clock and never in the five years that Walter had been employed by Lawrence and Street had he ever come in later than a quarter to nine.

Walter simply said "Good morning, Mr. Lawrence" and went to his desk, ignoring Lawrence's obvious displeasure.

After all, Mr. Lawrence quite frequently made his first appearance much later than this and Mr. Street was not yet in.

When Walter had looked over the letters that lay on his desk he turned to Miss Greely, the stenographer, who was obviously doing nothing. "Take these answers, will you, Miss Greely," he said, and Miss Greely looked up in amazement. Always before Walter Smith had said: "If you have nothing to do for Mr. Lawrence—or for Mr. Street—I wonder if you would have time to take a few letters."

An hour or so later Walter gave another amazing sign of insubordination. "Go out and see Jones Brothers today," Lawrence told him. "Tell them that we will discontinue deliveries immediately if they don't make a payment for everything up to date. Speak sharply to them."

"No, no," said Walter. "That won't do. Jones Brothers are one of our best customers. They are a little hard pressed now but perfectly sound. We can't afford to antagonize them."

Mr. Lawrence turned red in the face. "See here, Smith," he said. "I told you to go up and tell those people—what right have you to dispute my authority?" Walter merely grinned goodly at Lawrence and went into Mr. Street's private office.

"These specifications you've drawn up for 80 and 80," he told Mr. Street, "won't do." Mr. Street looked in amazement at the young man and then feeling the new note of seriousness and self-confidence in his voice listened intently. Obviously Walter Smith was right. As the day advanced every one in the organization was aware that a change had come over young Walter Smith, and no one was more aware of the fact than Walter himself.

At twelve Mr. Street asked Walter Smith to have luncheon with him at his club—a hitherto unprecedented occurrence.

"What's got into you, Smith," Mr. Street asked abruptly when they had taken their places at a table for two in the club dining room. "You had Lawrence all worked up."

"Nothing has got into me," Walter told him. "My manner has become changed because I'm through. For the first time since I went to work I don't matter whether I keep my job or not. When I left college five years ago I had to support my sister and brother. My brother was through college last June. He's doing well. And my sister was married last night. I've a few thousands in the bank. I no longer have to put up with Mr. Lawrence's stupidity and your short-sightedness. I intend to take a few months vacation and then make connections with a really going concern. To be sure you people are holding your own, but you're missing big opportunities because you're too conservative and you discourage your employees."

"But look here, Smith," Mr. Street was all solicitude. "We don't want you to work for one of our competitors. That's bad business. Why do you want to work for another concern?"

"Because another concern would pay me more nearly what I'm worth. They would or I wouldn't work for them. I've only myself to consider now."

"If I'd known you had it in you I'd have given you more money," Street explained. "I'll talk to Lawrence."

"Lawrence has nothing to say about it," Walter said with assurance. "Lawrence is merely a figurehead. I know as well as you do that he's lost whatever ability he ever had."

Street looked perplexed. "You certainly have changed," he told the younger man. "I'll think things over. You weren't thinking of making any changes before the first of January?"

"I am planning to leave at the end of the week. After all when you fire employees you give them less notice than that."

That evening while Lawrence and Street were lingering at the office in heavy conference discussing ways and means of keeping young Smith while they were going so far as to consider how he might be taken in on a junior partner—Walter Smith was dining at the best hotel restaurant in town with Marjorie Black. Mr. Lawrence's daughter.

"Of course I didn't tell your father we were going to get married," Walter told Marjorie. "I thought you ought to tell him that. But he's had enough surprises for one day."

"But I tell him we're going to be married next week," she said. "And that after we come back from Europe you'll go back to work for him."

"Tell him we're going to be married next week," said Walter. "But don't tell him I'm coming back—that's contrary to him. For the first time in my life I know I'm good, and I'm going to stay good by being independent."

Young Married Women's Club

The regular meeting of the Young Married Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. was held on Thursday afternoon at two-thirty. Printed programs of the year's meetings were distributed to the members, and several announcements were made. The fall dance will be held on Friday evening, November 18, and all members who plan to attend must sign up by Monday, November 14, with Mrs. E. C. Lanchester. Special attention was called to the fact that the next meeting will be held on the first Thursday in November, November 3, and Mrs. Milligan announced that the program would be on Norwegian Music. Among the numbers will be some by Mrs. Cecil Chickster of Woodstock, who is well known in this city; and others by Madame Kurt Gunda, a German artist, whose winter home is in Woodstock. Madame Kurt Gunda is well known in musical circles, has a concert manager, and will sing a number of folk songs in Norwegian. For this meeting each club member will be allowed one guest, and those planning to take advantage of this privilege are asked to inform Mrs. Milligan by Tuesday of next week.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Clarence Schoonmaker and was especially well planned. Four topics were discussed, three on federal subjects as follows: The Unemployment Problem, by Mrs. Clara Schaeffer; Federal and State Taxes, by Mrs. N. H. Fuller; and The Tariff by Mrs. Clarence Schoonmaker. All showed special study and thought. The last paper was given by Mrs. Arthur Gagnon and dealt with the constitutional amendments which will come before the voters on November 8. Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

SOUTH ROUNDOUT

South Roundout, Oct. 28.—A salad supper will be served this evening in the basement of the M. E. Church. Fancy articles will also be on sale.

The Junior Epworth League of the M. E. Church enjoyed a hike on Friday last. Among the hikers were the Rev. W. E. Gebhard, Kenneth Menzel, Julia Menzel, Anita Stengel, Barbara LeFevre, Dora Williams, Lucille Bigler, Violet Burnett, Wallace Becker, Charles Webster and Helen Rice. Invited guests were, Wanda and Adelaide Votoni, Helen Masner, Gertrude Farde, Austin Avery. All had a most enjoyable time. On Monday evening they will hold a Halloween party in the Sunday School room of the M. E. Church.

Lee Zarnitski returned to New York city, after a few days spent at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Dubois and daughter, Betty, have returned from spending the week in Kingston at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dubois of Linderman avenue.

Mrs. Josephine Hotelling has left for Pamlico, N. C., where she expects to spend a few weeks visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Haines have closed their summer hotel in Haines Falls and returned to their home on Second street.

Mrs. Andrew Anderson, Mrs. John H. Vogt and Mrs. James K. Wesley spent a most enjoyable evening Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Henry Myers of South Broadway. Port Ewen, in honor of her thirtieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Myers has been ill for the past eighteen months. The evening was spent with music played by the orchestra of which her son, Roland, is a member, and a very delicious menu of refreshments was served at 10 o'clock. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the hostess many more happy anniversaries and a speedy recovery to health.

WEST SHOOKAN, A PHOENIX HUNTER'S PARADE

West Shookan, Oct. 28.—An incident which might well be termed as a sequel to shooting the hay buck staged among the hunters at Maple Dell Farm a few years past, occurred on Monday, the opening day for pheasant hunting, near Judge Davis's store on Main street. The genial judge has had his shotgun all oiled up for a week or more so that he wouldn't be put out by some unforeseen jabs which always come near hunting season. On Tuesday morning about daylight the judge placed a mounted cock pheasant in the Winkler athletic field between his store and the Lohr estate, thinking that if he looked at the pheasant every now and then, he wouldn't get so excited if a real one should appear. He had also planned to use it for target practice.

The first hunter to pass the store was Raymond Bell of "Dickey Dell" cottage of North Main street. He spotted the pheasant, and after taking two perfect shots at it, picked it up and started triumphantly towards his car before he noticed that a board was fastened to its feet. He promptly placed the bird back on the grass.

George Burgher of Broome was working at the Lohr residence when he noticed the pheasant. He hurried over to the store to borrow the judge's shotgun, and after shooting twice, found to his great disappointment that his prize was false. Then along came Ralph Bell, one of the most successful and crafty hunters and crack shots of this section. He too would have shot the tail feathers off and clean off the pheasant had he not noticed George Burgher and Albert North laughing at him. Next came four mighty hunters from Olive Bridge, Edward Barley, Harvie Nicholson, Ernest Bommer and Robert Merrihue. Five shots easily knocked the bird over and tipped the board in the air. By this time the pheasant presented quite a ruffled appearance. About noon time Lauren Holey, the right hand man at Celanga's store, returned with a truck full of provisions from Kingston. He noticed the pheasant but couldn't get the truck stopped until he had gone over a hundred feet. He grabbed his shotgun and ran back up the road finding the best place to take careful aim. Just as he was ready to shoot, Uncle "Beale" Van De Mark, who was perched up in an apple tree like an old red squirrel, trimming the branches, let out one of his familiar "Ha Ha's," for it was too good to keep. Lauren knew something was wrong, and then Uncle Beale discovered the secret of the stuffed pheasant.

Benefit Dance
Tonight at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, the newly organized Kaslich A. C. will hold a benefit dance in order to raise money for its expenses for the coming season. Ed Barton and his eight-piece Metropolitan orchestra will furnish the music and a large crowd is expected as shown by the previous sale of tickets. The Kaslichs have already made out most of their schedule but a few more games are available. The team this year is composed of the following players: Novell and Minnesota, forwards; Planthaber, center; Kantrowitz, DeVos and Manning, guards. Dancing from 8:30 to 1.

BACON CANAPES

Bacon canapés are good for the first course of dinner or luncheon at any time of the year. Here is the recipe for a bacon canapé that is always well liked. Cut up raw bacon in small pieces and cook until crisp but not too brown. Have ready some chopped olives, preferable olives stuffed with pineapples. Now take small strips or squares of bread and toast them or fry them quickly in bacon fat. Place one on each plate, spread with a very little french mustard, sprinkle with the bacon and then with the olives.

Left-over bacon can always be turned to account. It may be used, cut up and warmed, in the preceding recipe. It may be cut up and warmed and then sprinkled into an omelet before it is folded. Chopped cooked bacon is a good addition to potatoes fried in the frying pan.

You can make a very good canapé for the first course of dinner with a little left-over calf's liver or chicken liver. Chop the liver fine and add one tablespoonful of grated cheese to two tablespoonfuls of the liver. Put in a small sautépan with just enough thick cream or top milk to make into a paste. Heat well and spread on small rounds of freshly made toast and serve hot.

Anesthetic Long Practiced

The use of anesthetic, which has now reached a fine point of perfection, had its forerunners in the days of the early Greeks and in China as far back as the Third century.

Of the modern anesthetics, nitrous oxide or laughing gas was the first discovered. It was used at Hartford, Conn., in 1844 by a dentist named Horace Wells, who employed it for the painless extraction of teeth. Sulphuric ether was used for the same purpose two years later by a Doctor Morton of Boston. This in turn was followed in 1847 by the discovery of chloroform by Sir James J. Simpson of Edinburgh.

Prodigious Larva

The horrors of prodigious animals which he is waiting for their prey are no greater, except in relation to their size, than the horror of the ant lion, which lies in wait for hapless ants and other insects which fall victims of its trap. The ant lion is the larva of an insect common in the United States known as Neuroptera. The larva has long jaws and pincerlike claws. It constructs a funnel-like hole in the sand about two inches across at the top. It lies at the base of this funnel with its pincers extended up into the funnel. The victims slide down the sides of the funnel to the waiting larva.

Poverty Not Temple-Maker

"Nowadays we know that it is not the poverty of the home which affects the child as much as overcrowding and the absence of little luxuries and toys." Thus declared Dr. Cyril Hart, psychologist to the education department of the London County Council, in a speech in London recently. "You will be a far better teacher if you observe your children than if you rush in and drill them without studying their mentality at all," he said.

"GRANNY'S" RECOLLECTIONS

NOW SELLS FOR A DOLLAR

A new edition of Mrs. A. E. P. Sealing's book for children and grown-ups, "When Granny Was a Little Girl," is now on sale at the local book stores among the dollar books. A childhood of fifty years ago is described for girls and boys from ten to fifteen, and incidentally a picture is painted of life along the Hudson at that time. Mrs. Sealing's book has been listed by the American Library Association in the recommended reading for young people in their catalogue of "Stories of American Life for Boys and Girls." Aside from its merit as an interesting tale, there is a local interest that adds greatly to its charm for readers, young and old, in Ulster county, the scene of the greater part of the story being at Saugerties and the characters real people of half a century ago.

Indiana has 1,016 townships with a total of 9,086 township officials.

Affirm Conviction Of Japanese Butler

Who Is Awaiting Execution For The Murder of J. William Schatz of Poughkeepsie On November 28
Last.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP).—The execution of Goro Akiyama, Japanese butler awaiting execution for the murder of his employer, J. William Schatz, at Poughkeepsie, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals today.

Schatz was hacked and beaten to death at his home on December 20
last. The prosecution charged that Akiyama, angered because the manufacturer had dismissed him as butler
in the Schatz mansion, climbed through a window into the bedroom
where Schatz and a woman guest, Mrs. Florence Quock Carosa, were sleeping, attempted to choke Mrs.
Carosa to prevent her from arousing Schatz and then attacked Schatz.
His body was found later in the cellar, where Akiyama was hiding.

Fear of the seven judges of the court voted to affirm the conviction,
two, Kellogg and Crouch, dissented,
and Judge Lehman did not sit in on the hearing.

The Court of Appeals set the date for the execution as the week of December 5 and only clemency on the part of Governor Roosevelt can save Akiyama from death in the electric chair.

Dr. Wylie's Talk On "Child Guidance"

A considerable group of Home Bureau members and parents attended the talk given by Dr. Margaret Wylie, child guidance specialist
from the State College of Home Economics at Cornell, at the court house
Thursday evening.

Dr. Wylie, whose knowledge and love of her subject are profound and understanding, chose as her topic,
"Answering Children's Questions."

The speaker considered three types of questions asked by children, going into each subject carefully and illustrating her points with stories from real life. She considered the three types of questions as follows:
Sex questions about the beginning of life, etc.; religious or spiritual questions including life and death;
and social status questions about human relations, etc.

Dr. Wylie asked her audience to think in the terms of a thinking child, in dealing with children. To all questions she advised concrete,
true but comforting answers, cultivating a spirit of confidence rather than fear on the part of the child,
and helping the child to think through the things that have value
in life.

The last type of question was the hardest to answer, for adults are often greatly confused in thinking about the social side of life today.

At the close of Dr. Wylie's most helpful talk, many questions were asked by those present.

DAVIS CHAIRMAN OF KERNONKON COMMITTEE

Brian to the Rescue

By ALICE DUANE

© By William Macomber Syndicate.
W. E. C. Service

IT HAD been an unusually severe morning for Brian Kent, sitting at his perfectly appointed desk in one of his uncle's spacious offices.

Brian was getting into shape a so-per his uncle had asked him to have ready that afternoon.

Once or twice that morning he had been on the verge of interrupting this report business, finding an excuse to dictate a letter so that even for a short few minutes he could have had a reason to have his uncle's very charming young secretary sitting at the opposite side of his desk. But there was always a chance that his uncle might come in unexpectedly—
and the report was urgent.

The steady dull drone of machinery
was becoming almost unendurable—
and then the low, throaty growl followed by the high deafening shriek of the fire alarm.

No special need for alarm, Brian quickly assured himself. After all, the factory people had probably been given specific instructions for orderly exit from the building in such an emergency.

The factory side of the building
Brian knew was practically fire proof
but this older section that housed the executive offices and the office staffs was of wooden construction. There was a sprinkler system and numerous fire exits, but even then things sometimes happen—

Brian quickly gathered up the papers strewn on his desk, crammed them into his coat pockets and dashed into the large bare room where the typists and stenographers had their desks. Most of the desks were already deserted. Girls were hurrying across the floor to an exit beyond. He called to some who lingered and told them to go without delay.

"Where is Miss Mason?" he called to one of them.

"She ran into the accounting department," the girl told him.

Brian muttered an oath to himself and dashed forward to the accounting department. Miss Mason was kneeling beside a small safe in one of the smaller offices.

In a fraction of a second he reached
her, took the papers from her hands, threw them in the safe and without waiting to explain lifted her in his arms.

"What are you doing?" she asked,
and then realizing that there was no
alternative let her slender young body
relax in his strong young arms.

"There is no terrible hurry," she told him, as he hurried down the hall.

But Brian assured her that he was taking no chances. He would have carried her down the fire escape if she had not so seriously objected. Instead he went down the stairs ahead
of her, turning back at every step to assure himself of her safe descent.

Alice Mason breathed a sigh of relief when she had reached the ground and realized that some of the girls had been looking on.

"They will all be over at the other side," she told Brian, who stood looking down at her in a friendly, possessive way.

"You had me worried for a minute," he said. "And don't you ever take time to put letters in the safe again."

"But that's orders from your uncle," Alice said. "There's always the chance that a letter might be valuable—no just as a matter of drill we always do it."

"Matter of drill!" Brian repeated blankly. "Always do it! What do you mean?"

"Just that every time we have a fire drill we are supposed to do precisely what we would if there was a real fire."

Brian looked amazed and then laughed.

"The joke's on me," he told her.
"But how did I know it was only a drill? No one told me."

"How did you happen to run across me?" Alice asked. "Wasn't you going to leave the building?" She was trying not to laugh at him.

"Not until I'd found you," he said.
"You see, that's the first thing I thought of when I heard that shrieking alarm. I suppose I thought I was saving your life or something—anyway,
I'm glad for your sake the other girls
didn't see the rescue."

"I wouldn't have minded, if you helped," Alice told him. "I started to cry out at first, because I was so surprised. But—I didn't mind. I'd been hoping all morning you'd send for me to take some dictation."

"And I'd been wishing I had a chance."

A gong rang. Alice said it was the signal to return to the building. She wasn't laughing now. "I'm very grateful to you."

"Oh, please," Brian told her. "I really made a mistake—and incidentally let you know, as you must know now, that I'm seriously interested."

"Couldn't we talk about that some other time?" Alice suggested. "That is—I've got to get back in time to go with the other girls—she was waiting away from him now—but I'm interested, too."

"Let's talk about it tonight at dinner," he called softly. "I'll call you in for dictation and we can make plans—So long, Alice."

"So long, Brian. Thanks for the rescue. And next time there's to be a drill I'll let you know."

Senator J. R. Hanley Delivers Address

He expressed himself as being with President Hoover on his stand, saying he was a veteran of two wars,
the Spanish American and World War. Relief to wounded and sick veterans should be readily and immediately given, he said, but favored the extension of time, as originally planned, for the payment of the "bonus". The taxpayers are too heavily burdened already, he said to force them to accept other debts.

Senator Hanley also touched on the Refinance Corporation, explaining that if such a remedy had not come about much more suffering might have occurred. He refuted the arguments that the railroads are reaping
the benefits of this institution by explaining that if these enterprises, the backbone of the nation, were not helped, stockholders of banks and others would be the losers if failure occurred.

Regarding European debts, the speaker said that they were the
"babies" of the Democratic administration in power during the World War.

Referring to Lieutenant Governor
Lehman's recent speech in Kingston in which he blamed the Republican legislature at Albany for excessive expenditures, Senator Hanley said Governor Roosevelt was the one to question on this score as he made up the state budget.

In conclusion Senator Hanley said
William J. Donovan is the man needed to lead New York state out of its present condition of too extravagant government.

Regarding Senator Wicks, up for reelection as the representative of the 29th District, including Ulster, Greene and Delaware counties, Senator Hanley said he had no reason to doubt his success on November 8 and pointed to his record to carry him through.

Philip Elting closed the program
with words of appreciation for a recent resolution sent to him by the Republican Club wishing him speedy recovery to good health which he had not been enjoying for some time.

Donovan Meeting Downtown Tonight

by the Independent Veterans Committee, will be held at the downtown
headquarters, 24 Broadway, tonight
at 7:30 o'clock when George Fishlein,
who served with Colonel William J.
Donovan in the 165th Infantry, will be the guest speaker. Mr. Fishlein is chairman of the Dutchess county Independent Veterans Committee supporting Colonel Donovan for governor of the state.

POUGHKEEPSIE SCHOOL CHILDREN TO BE VACCINATED

The discovery of a case of small-pox in a high school pupil in Poughkeepsie on Thursday, resulted in an immediate move to certify to the existence of the disease by the health board. It was also decided that all children in all of the schools of the city, who have not been vaccinated,
must be vaccinated. With the certification that smallpox exists vaccination is compulsory. The case discovered is that of a girl who is said to be suffering from a mild attack of the disease.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The stock market continued its slow horizontal movement for the sixth successive session today.

Prices pushed up a point or two here and there during the morning, but slid back in the middle of the day, as professional traders found they were attracting no following.

Such speculative interest as there was seemed to center in the rails.

Gains of 1 to 1 1/2 points were temporarily registered in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Lackawanna and New York Central, but these gains were mostly cut to fractions later.

common and preferred rose 1 and 1 1/2, respectively, but the common failed to hold its rise. An extreme gain of 1 1/2 in American Telephone was mostly lost. American Can, National Biscuit, Goodyear, Endicott, Johnson, Owens Illinois Glass, Gillette and American Can were among other issues getting up a point or more for a time.

Wall Street found the weekly Federal Reserve reports, indicating a further piling up of excess reserves of member banks, return of currency from hoarding, and continued inflow of gold, decidedly encouraging as to basic financial conditions, but stock market quarters were imbued with the feeling that the autumn uptick in general business might be reached in its seasonal peak and were uncertain as to the trend of the market over the remainder of the year.

There was some talk in brokerage quarters, however, of probable increased technical strength of the market as a result of the sharp reduction in brokers' loans, and increased short selling recently.

The weekly mercantile reviews indicated that retail trade had felt the effects of adverse weather conditions during the past week, and that wholesale business was feeling the full of a between-seasons period, but pointed to encouraging indications of further gradual gains in manufacturing activity, and increases in employment.

Cost of Farming Cut by Tractors

Assertion Made That Their Use Means Lowering of Expenses

Now that Illinois farmers have increased the number of tractors on their farms more than 61 per cent since 1925, one of the best ways for them to cut down operating costs is to adjust their power more accurately to the needs of the individual farms.

This is shown in a study of 30 central Illinois farms, all of which used general-purpose tractors in 1931. The 15 farms that had replaced the most horses by adding a tractor had labor, power and machinery costs that were $2 a crop acre less than they were on the 15 farms where the tractors displaced the fewest horses.

The 15 farms that had replaced the most horses with tractors had labor, power and machinery costs that averaged $7.96 a crop acre, while the 15 farms with the least number of horses displaced by tractors had similar costs totaling $9.96 an acre. This saving of $2 an acre is an item of considerable importance in a time when dollars are so valuable.

Operators of farms in the first group displaced an average of six horses when they added a general-purpose tractor, but the operators of the second group of farms displaced an average of only a little better than two horses with each tractor.

Where a large number of horses were used in addition to the tractor, there was also an unnecessary duplication of other machinery. Such farms had a machinery investment of $12.96 an acre as compared with $8.55 on the farms where more horses had been displaced. On the farms where the greater number of horses was displaced, the remaining horses worked 66 crop acres each and the tractors on these farms were used 646 hours a year. In contrast, the horses on the other group of farms operated only 87 crop acres each and the tractors were used only 447 hours during the year.

The farms where the larger number of horses were replaced averaged 327 acres, or 100 acres more, than the farms in the other group. The large farms also had less live stock an acre than the smaller ones. The general-purpose tractors were used to the best advantage on the large grain farms.

Soybean as Emergency Hay Crop Recommended

Those who are in need of an emergency hay crop may well consider soybeans for that purpose because of their high content of protein and good yielding quality. As a roughage for dairy or beef cattle it is almost the equal of alfalfa.

In fact when soybeans are seeded on land on which two or three crops of weeds have been destroyed before seeding, they will often do better than earlier seedings for which the seed bed has not been as thoroughly prepared.

In the early stages of growth soybeans are not particularly good weed fighters and hence the desirability of killing as many weeds as possible before seeding.

While sudden grass also makes a good emergency hay crop, it is not quite so palatable as soybeans and much below the latter in protein content. Protein is by far the most expensive element in any livestock ration, hence the more of it one can produce at home the less supplementary protein concentrates need be purchased. Every bit of protein one can add to a ration for cattle and other animals in the shape of a hay crop is just that much gain.—Wisconsin Agriculturalist.

Lamb-Feeding Results

Michigan lamb feeders secured better results in their lamb feeding contest last year than during the previous year. The contest was won by Charles Kivell of Grand county. His returns of 153.3 pounds per lamb were 12.6 pounds greater than the best results before. Among the 118 contestants about 80 per cent fed the ewes legumes. They also fed grain before and after lambing. Eighty-two per cent finished the ewes 98 per cent provided winter exercise, 78 per cent dipped to control external parasites, and 80 per cent sorted and graded their lambs before marketing.—Successful Farming.

Cattle Like Legumes

Legume crops proved the most palatable to a group of steers on the United States Department of Agriculture farm at Beltsville, Md., when they had choice of 25 different kinds of forage crops to choose from. First to choose alfalfa and lespedeza, the steers chose bromegrass, then timothy and perennial ryegrass and meadow fescue. A mixture of standard pasture grasses were next in line.

For Scab on Pears

The application of potato dust and paris green is not likely to have any marked effect in controlling scab on pears. To control the scab, lime sulphur spray should be applied to the trees twice before blossoming and two or three times after blossoming. For the spray before blossoming, Bordeaux mixture might be used, and, if the potato dust is a bordeaux dust, it might have some effect. Write to your experiment station for the best formulae to use and time for spraying.

How's Pulling Power

In determining the average pulling power of a horse, much depends on the kind of surface over which an object is pulled, its traction qualities and the resistance of the object to be moved. In actual pulling contests horses have generated more than ten horse power.

About the Folks

Libby Lavecky, who suffered severe burns some time ago, is convalescing at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Dutach, 24 East Union street.

W. Dean Hays of Fair street, who has been confined to his home with illness the past two weeks, is again able to be about and hopes soon to return to his gold mines in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sparling of 3 Walnut street are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son at the Benedictine Hospital. Before marriage Mrs. Sparling was Catherine Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Anna Stokes are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a twelve pound daughter, Marie Ann. Mother and daughter are doing nicely under the care of Dr. Galvin.

Miss Josephine Datto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Datto, of 43 Pine street, Kingston, has been made a member of the Glee Club of the College of New Rochelle, New Rochelle, N. Y. Miss Datto, who is a freshman at the college, is a graduate of the Kingston High School.

Males More Dressed in Eyes of Samatra Tribe

Two primitive peoples in Samatra—UNAKU women ruled Manangkaba and 1,500,000 man-ruled Bataks—were studied by Dr. E. M. Loeb of the University of California to find out who rules best. These tribes were widely compared with each other, not with advanced peoples. Among the Manangkaba, men figure about as prominently as drunks in ant society. Thought of as "roosters that lay no eggs," the poor males are treated roughly. Instead of marrying, women rent their men; and as soon as a rusted mate becomes tiresome, the woman rolls up her blanket, moves out and leaves him flat. All hard work is done by women, while the men drowse around.

Among the Bataks, however, males are masters and females slaves. As to the comparative value of the two systems Dr. Loeb has little to say. Ransome Sutton writes, in the Los Angeles Sunday Times Magazine. What mostly interested him was the discovery that social ideas and customs, even among "lost tribes," are not products of local development, but are "complexes" produced both by ancestral and present day influences. A tribe may degenerate and go to seed, yet its lineage still lives in the seed.

Gallows Trap Refused to Do Expected Work

Three times they tried to hang him and three times they failed.

The story of John Lee, the man they couldn't hang, is told by David Fredrick McCord in the Illustrated Detective Magazine. It happened at Exeter, England, in February, 1885.

"Lee stood on the gallows," writes McCord. "The sheriff signaled. The lever was pulled. Seconds ticked away. As it gripped by some cause paralyzed the trap refused to drop. Lee, bound and unafraid upon the brink of death, still uttering his prayer for mercy, remained unshaken, unmoved.

"They seized him and lifted him from the trap. The lever was tested and worked perfectly. Again he was brought out and again it refused to work. A third time and the crowd was hysterical.

"He is innocent," cried a voice from the crowd. "God knows he is innocent and will not let him die."

His sentence was commuted to 22 years and he died in his own bed.

Ancient and Modern Violins

Experiments made in London support the contention that the present-day hand-made violin is quite as good as those made by any of the famous makers whose names are household words. The tone produced by the present-day instruments was as strong and pure as the best Strad, and the most experienced listeners could not distinguish which was the Strad, and which the modern violin. If our greatest experts cannot tell which is the better instrument, why pay a fabulous price for prestige?—Exchange.

Tricks of Hardwood

The earthworm has only one head or front half with the organs essential to continued life. This is the smaller pointed end. If the worm is cut in two near the middle, the front half will usually grow another tail; the hind half will usually produce a second tail, but such a worm is incapable of ingesting food and will soon die. When only a few of the front segments of the worm are cut off, say less than five, the remaining part of the worm will usually repair the injury by producing a new head.

Too Much Pie

The butcher was very young and not very experienced and he realized the moment the said "pie" in explaining an example that she never should have said it. However, she went along with as straight a face as she could muster. The idea she was trying hard to convey had to do with quantities.

"Now, Emmerdale, you have you would really rather have one pie than seven."

"Oh, no, I wouldn't. No, indeed, I wouldn't. I just know even seven pies would make me sick."

The Lamb's Song

The song of the lamb is a continuous torrent of restrained guttural and clear, shrill sounds and thrills, so rapidly emitted that the notes, so different in character, yet seem to interpenetrate or to overlap each other; and the effect on the ear is similar to that on the eye of silver or dull and brilliant colors mixed and running into one another in a confused pattern.—W. H. Hudson.

Society Notes

Death of Miss. Mrs. I. D. Lane's and Mrs. C. S. Trumbull's circle of friends, Mrs. Wynne Gault will hold a tea in the lecture room of the First Dutch Church Saturday, October 29, from 3 to 6 p. m. The public is cordially invited to patronize the event.

Baptist-Lyon. Ellenville, Oct. 28.—Miss Dorothy Lyon and Joseph Battly were united in marriage in St. Mary's Church on Monday, October 17, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Joseph Mangione. Witnesses to the ceremony were Mrs. Hazel Clinton and Orville H. Blackmar.

Elliot-Moss. Miss Martha Moss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moss of Woodmere, Long Island, became the bride of Russell Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Elliott of New Paltz, on Saturday, October 22, at Woodmere, Long Island. On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Elliott were given a skit-slam by the New Paltz Fire Department boys. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will make their home with the former's parents at New Paltz. Mr. Elliott is in business with his father.

Ryder-Blinder. New Paltz, Oct. 28.—On Sunday, October 9, Emilie Blinder and Joel M. Ryder, both of New Paltz, were married in the Reformed Church by the Rev. Gerret J. Wallachliker, pastor, after the morning service. The bride was attended by her sister, Frances Wandler, of New Jersey. The groom's best man was Charles Ryder of Massachusetts. Guests were present from New Paltz, West Englewood, Massachusetts and Coxsackville, N. Y. Dinner was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride on Huguenot street.

Birthday Surprise. A very pleasant surprise birthday party was given to Mrs. Delena Rosener of West Coopers, Sunday, October 23, when about 15 relatives and friends gathered at her home. Mrs. Rosener was 75 and she received many gifts. Those who were there were, Mrs. Delena Rosener, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Anderson, Rosener Wheeler, Amy Anderson, Miss Rachel Rosener, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grosser of Westhaver, N. J., Mrs. Julia Peters, Miss Lela Peters of Union City, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Elliott, Grace Louise Elliott and Mrs. Cora Wine of Kingston. Late Sunday afternoon after a lovely dinner was served by Mrs. Anderson the guests departed wishing Mrs. Rosener many more happy birthdays.

WOMEN CAN BE YOUNG AT 80. SAYS HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Quoting Helena Rubinstein, dean of beauty specialists, her personal representative who arrived in town last night, said, "There is no reason, nowadays, why any woman should look within 10 or even 15 years of her age. Science has taught us that the skin is constantly in a state of renewing itself. Nature, however, does not keep itself young. It needs help from the outside. A skin which is kept scrupulously clean and which is scientifically stimulated and nourished by the proper correctives, will remain healthy and young even into old age. In fact, with the scientifically correct preparations to keep the skin basically healthy and the artistic application of good cosmetics to bring out its best points, every woman, no matter what her features, can look charming and young at any age."

Madame Rubinstein's representative will be at Wonders Company for the next three days, and will be glad to show you how this seeming miracle of "eternal youth" can be accomplished. She will be available at the toilet goods department, for private consultation on individual skin health and beauty problems. She will also recommend simple and effective home treatments for the skin according to Helena Rubinstein's world-famous methods and she will create for every woman requesting it a personalized make-up especially created from Helena Rubinstein's smart Parisian cosmetics, to bring out all the charm and beauty in every type of face. This service is entirely without charge and given the women of Kingston a most unusual opportunity to take stock of their looks on the advice of an expert.

Workmen See Black Bear

Mrs. Kathryn B. Hays has a force of carpenters at work making extensive repairs and improvements at her summer hotel, Rosmor Inn, Woodland Valley. Several nights last week the men occupied one of the cottages, "The Pokebonnet," and hearing a noise in the night, they found a good sized black bear munching apples. The men were only equipped with hammers and saws so Mr. Bear ate on unmolested.

Annual Fair at Napanoch

The annual church fair and New England supper of the Napanoch Reformed Church will be held in Mechanics' Hall in Napanoch on Wednesday evening, November 2.

Prayer and Praise Service

The midweek prayer and praise service will be held at the Upper Room Mission, 562 Broadway, tonight at 7:30 o'clock instead of 8 o'clock the usual hour.

PORT EVEN.
*****
Port Even, Oct. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Philip Vining and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Freer of New Salem and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Doyle and family of Port Even were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Churchwell.

The Girl Scouts will hold a Halloween party in the Reformed Church house this evening. There will be games and refreshments.

Hope Lodge, No. 45, K. of P., will hold a card party in Pythian Hall, Tuesday evening, November 1. There will be refreshments.

The Boy Scouts will hold their regular meeting at 7 o'clock this evening in the Reformed Church house.

The Reformed Church fair will be held in the church house on the evenings of November 3 and 4. The following is the menu for the turkey supper to be held the first evening: Roast turkey, gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed onions, cabbage salad, cranberry sauce, celery, raised biscuits, pumpkin or apple pie, tea or coffee. An entertainment of moving pictures will be shown after the supper. A salad supper will be served the second night, after which a miscellaneous entertainment will be given. A large attendance is expected at this annual church fair.

The Port Even Department's Fire.

Mrs. Sheridan Simpson of Lake Mahock is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis.

All members of the Port Even Fire Department's Fire, Drum and Bugle Corps are requested to be at the armory Monday evening, October 31, not later than 10:30.

Presbyterian Fund Sale

Circle No. 1 of the First Presbyterian Church will hold a food sale at the store of Rose & Gorman, North Front street, Saturday, starting at 1 p. m.

Fire on High Street

A brush fire off High street this afternoon caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 41, Third avenue and High street, as chicken coops in the vicinity were threatened by the fire.

Owl Steals Glasses

While Sydney E. Sugden was dining on the veranda of his home in Wilmot, England, an owl attacked him. He drove it away, but when he returned later the bird flew at his face, clawed him about the eyes and carried away his eyeglasses.

HURLEY FARM BUREAU COMMITTEE MEETING

On Tuesday night the Hurley county committee of the Farm Bureau held its annual meeting at the home of W. A. Warren. Mr. Warren is chairman of the Hurley committee. Other members of the committee present were: John H. Beatty, Harry Kaplowitz, John Ostrander and Milton Walker. M. T. E. DeWitt and Ray Elmendorf, also members of the committee, could not be present. W. J. Clark and Albert Kurdt, of the Farm Bureau office, were also present.

Because of the nearness to Kingston, no special local meetings were planned for the coming winter. The committee is very much interested in having the county poultry committee promote a "chick show" in Kingston this winter, promote the Hudson Valley Egg Auction and cooperate in a three-day poultry school. Unless some special problems come up among the vegetable growers, no meetings will be held. The entire committee is interested in the development of a farmers' public market in the city of Kingston. The dairy interests will cooperate in staging a two-day school with Prof. Brownell.

Harry Kaplowitz was chosen as the poultry project leader in the community. Ray Elmendorf the fruit leader and John Beatty will represent the dairy interests.

Intaglio is a term applied to any recessed carving, in which no part projects beyond the original face of the material. In some cases, as in gem cutting, the entire relief is recessed. In others, as in some Egyptian wall carvings, the outline is sufficiently incised so as to allow normal relief. This type is sometimes known as cave rilievo or sunk relief.

America's Gift to France
The colossal statue which Americans gave to France as a memorial to the Battle of the Marne was sculptured by Frederick William MacMonie. It is called "France Defiant," and is near Meaux.

Outlook On Major Football Contests

By HERBERT W. MARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Columbia, Harvard, Pitt, Brown, Cornell, Penn and Temple, of the east's major teams, face the most serious threats to their undefeated records tonight and tomorrow.

Colgate, alone of the so-called "big college" teams which so far have escaped defeat, seems virtually certain of continuing its triumphant march.

Briefly, here are the prospects for some of the more important battles: Pitt-Notre Dame—Pitt is one of the east's greatest arrays but it will be a sensational surprise if the Panthers do more than extend the Ramblers who have scored nearly a point a minute against Haskell, Drake and Carnegie Tech.

Columbia-Cornell—This probably will be one of the closest fought games of the day with Columbia's undefeated and untied Lions a slight choice unless Johnny Ferraro, star back, is in shape to play most of the game for Cornell.

Harvard-Brown—Both are undefeated but Harvard seems to pack the superior punch.

Penn-Navy—The Quakers will be favored over Navy but the Tars showed vast improvement in their scoreless tie with Princeton.

Temple-Carnegie Tech—The best last Carpegie took from Notre Dame will not enhance the Tartans' chances against unbeaten Temple although this Friday night game looks close.

Colgate-Penn State—This should be a romp for Colgate.

Purdue-New York University—It will take better line play than New York University showed against Colgate to cope with Purdue's versatile and powerful attack.

Army-William and Mary—The southern upset Navy early in the season but they don't look strong enough to push Army.

Syracuse-Michigan State—Michigan State whipped Fordham last week and should make it two in a row over the east.

Yale-Dartmouth—Dartmouth has played Yale 15 times without winning a game. This looks like the Indians' chance of a lifetime.

Fordham-Boston College—Fordham should resume its winning streak here.

Lafayette-Washington and Jefferson—A battle of ancient rivals in which past performances can be tossed out. W. & J., however, has much the better record.

Michigan-Princeton—The Tiger has all hopes of halting Michigan's undefeated machine, Big Ten leader.

PUNTS and PASSES

By The Associated Press

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—If the Princeton team needed any incentive to try its hardest against Michigan Saturday, it was supplied by a clipping from a Michigan paper in training quarters before the team left for Ann Arbor. The clipping said that the Michigan students left for Ann Arbor. The clipping said that the Michigan students were showing more interest in the "B" team's game against a small teachers' college than in the varsity game with the Tigers.

Pittsburgh—Nick Nicklsik, the sophomore who has been substituting for Warren Heller in the Pitt backfield, has discovered that it takes more than diligent application to his work on the field to become a useful football player. Nicklsik was declared ineligible yesterday because he had "failed to attend classes."

Annapolis, Md.—A couple of midshipmen who traveled a long way to join the Navy football team have been getting a lot of praise from the coaches for their offensive work. They are "Killer" Kane of San Rafael, Cal., and "Slim" Brookes of Corpus Christi, Tex.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—"Old Man" Stagg, Chicago's veteran coach, will be honored when the Maroons meet Michigan here November 12. The day has been designated as "Stagg Day" and ceremonies in his honor will be held between the halves.

South Bend, Ind.—The Notre Dame "B" team is expected to show plenty of strength against Texas at Lubbock, Tex., tonight. Only the first 35 men of the Ramblers' squad of 140 was chosen to go east for the Pittsburgh game and the next best squad was sent into the southwest.

New Haven, Conn.—More speed seems to be the aim of Mal Stevens, Yale coach, in his preparations for the Dartmouth game. He dropped two 280-pound guards from the varsity lineup yesterday and replaced them with a pair of speedy 170-pounders, Deangelis and Converse.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard will be lacking an experienced center when it plays Brown Saturday. Both Roger Hallowell and Frank Casale are on the sidelines because of injuries.

Yellow Jackets After 5th Straight

The Kingston Yellow Jackets hope to score their fifth consecutive victory Sunday at the Kingston Fair Grounds where they stack up against Poughkeepsie. Eleven grid veterans make up the down-river group and the "Bees" should have a real test in this formation. Starting time of the game is 2:45 o'clock.

Regardless of the strength that the Bridge City pigskin tilters may show, the "Wasps" contend that they can be no tougher than the four teams they have already defeated and count on taking them over for the fifth win of the season. The Yellow Jackets have defeated the West Point Artillery, Albany Lucky Strikers, Woodlawn of Yonkers and Sing Sing prison. The convicts were the first to score on the Jackets. Final tally of this contest in favor of the Kingstonians was 15-7.

SENECAS REGISTER WIN OVER SAUGERTIES FIVE

The Kingston Senecas walloped the Saugerties Peanant Vendors to the tune of 55-21 at Salvation Army court Thursday night. Featured scorers were Gehler with 19 and Fraleigh with 13 for the Senecas, and Malford with 12 for Saugerties. The score:

	FG	FP	TP
Gehler, rf	9	1	19
Cooper, lf	1	0	2
Streeter, lf	5	0	10

Kingston Forces Ready for Port

Coach G. Warren Kias announced this morning that the forces of the Maroon were in first rate condition for Port Jervis here Saturday. This will be Kingston's second DUSO League game and Port's first. The men of Chase are tuned up for this meeting and have had a mighty successful season thus far. The Tri-State eleven has taken over some of the best prep schools and normal schools that it chanced to lock horns with.

Kias expects to have his team tested to the greatest extent against the down starters. They have a fast, powerful and aggressive team. A few of the regulars were injured last week and their names didn't appear in the lineup against Raymond. Probably Coach Chase is saving them for Kingston, taking all precautions to have his best men on the field for the Kingston school has been doing things this season and can't be tampered with.

From out of the ranks of the Red and Black comes the news of injury. A late dispatch from Port Jervis brought the news that "Peard Schofield, varsity fullback, will not see service against the Colonials because of injuries received in the Rindoon game." Also that "Ted Balmos, a steady influence in the line, is out for the season with an attack of appendicitis and his loss is a big one. McLaughlin, a clever wingman, is on the bench with a broken bone in his foot." That's what the Port Union-Gazette says.

Port The Under-Dog. Because of the injuries and look out in general, Port considers itself the under-dog. Kingston's 6-2 victory over Middletown last week seemed to stir the valley. Apparently no one expected this but Port is being careful and is looking forward to a real tough game.

The dispatch also says that the Tri-State School has not been playing its best brand of football in the last few games. This means little, of course, for it will be very easy for the visitors to open up with all their strength against Kingston. Welch, Orlando and Gregg are Port's main players and the success of this game will lie in them.

Many to Follow Port

Port expects to have a large gathering of followers to root for them when things look bad and to make merry when things look good. The spirit at Port Jervis always waxes high when its team plays a DUSO League opponent. Several buses of students are coming and no doubt will fill to capacity the new bleachers erected at the Kingston Fair Grounds for the gridiron season.

It was also announced by the local Athletic Association that Kingston students have been very enthusiastic about the coming game and that a large number of tickets have been sold. From all indications a record crowd should be at the field.

More Bleachers Added

Since the last Kingston High and Yellow Jacket game, more bleachers have been erected at the Fair Grounds. It is thought now that hundreds can be accommodated on both sides of the field, and that there will be room for all who attend.

Hebrew Quintets Good In Practice

The Hebrew-Americans and Y. P. L. Girls held their first practice of the basketball season at the Downtown Jewish Community Center Wednesday night under the direction of Coach Irv Rabin, who was well pleased with the performance of both quintets. He hopes to see his teams play some of the best in the Hudson valley this winter. November 2 or 3 are the tentative opening dates of games at the Center. Dates for contest may be arranged by communicating with Miss Sophie Kohn whose phone is 2152 and Sam Rosenberg, 2452.

Expect Record Crowd At West Point to See Army-Indian Game

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Plans to handle the largest football crowd of the season expected here Saturday, October 29, for the William and Mary game have been made by Major P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics. The advance sale of tickets has far exceeded expectations and it is evident that football fans are anxious to see the Army team which defeated Yale and which will meet Harvard on November 5.

While Major Fane has given the first team some hard work this week, the reserves have received the bulk of the coach's attention. Because of the hard games, Fane has been unable to use the substitutes to any great extent and as a result their training has suffered.

William and Mary will arrive here Friday morning and work out in the stadium in the afternoon. Their three backfield stars, Buck LaCroix, Billy Fane and Charlie Shanks, have recovered from their injuries and will not be in the starting lineup. They will undoubtedly get into the game early and lead the "Indian" attack. "Happy" Halligan, their outstanding end, will also be in action.

Lapses for both teams are:

Poa. Army	William and Mary
L. E. King, R. T. Henderson	L. T. Lincoln
L. G. Sumner (Capt.) Anderson	C. Evans, R. T. Henderson
R. G. Jablonsky	R. T. Armstrong
R. E. Kopsack	Halligan (Capt.)
L. B. MacWilliam	Cholko
Q. H. E. Fields	Worrell
R. H. E. Brown, T. T. Brown	Speck

Officials are:

Referee—J. E. Keegan (Boys' Club of Pittsfield).

Umpire—H. N. Merritt (Yale).

Lineman—H. E. VonKersburg (Harvard).

Field Judge—D. J. Kelly (Springfield).

Stone Ridge Banner Bearers Held Drill

Pete Brock's All Stars, representatives of Stone Ridge this season, held their first basketball drill at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, their home court, Thursday night. The Brockmen played against the Stone Ridge Juniors, getting a good workout despite the fact that they were able to score at will.

The combination that Pete used was made up of Herb Van Dusen and Norm Niles, forwards; Knoll, center; Jimmy Merritt and "Woody" Wood, guards.

Following the drill a representative of the D. Kastrowitz clothing store measured the players for new uniforms.

The opening game of the season at B. W. S. is November 16. Preliminary to the features will be played by the Stone Ridge Juniors and the Roanoke Five, a girls' quintet.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)
Harrisburg, Pa.—Jim London, 292, threw Herman Hickman, 240, Times, 25:14.

Grand of Large Growth. The bureau of plant industry says that there is no type of bean which grows from 15 to 25 feet high and has pods 8 feet long. There is a type of sword, Leguminosae vulgaris, known as garden bean, garden butterbean, or Hercules Club, which comes nearer to these proportions than any other vegetable with which that bureau is familiar. This plant is not a bean, the growth being members of the cucumber family, Cucurbitaceae.—Washington Star.

Crowd Expected at City Series Final Game for Pennant

It is expected that a large turnout of fans will be at the final game in the City Baseball League series for the pennant at the Athletic Field Saturday afternoon. Starting time of the game is 2:30, and indications are that it will be packed with thrills from start to finish.

Opposing batteries have not been definitely named, but it is presumed that Paul Joyce will start on the mound for the Knights of Columbus with Harold Clayton as his catcher. Jimmy Voelker or Dewey Van Buren will toss 'em over for the Forst Butchers. Jack Robins will be behind the plate.

In the three game series for the league pennant the Knights won the first 3-1 and the Butchers took the second 3-1. Several postponements then interfered with the third and deciding battle over a stretch of three weeks, disappointing fans who are anxious to see the fight for the pennant finished. City Judge Bernard A. Culleton, president of the City League, finally decreed that the thing should wind up this Saturday. So everything is set for the thrilling match.

Newburgh Tops League Scorers

Just now Newburgh Free Academy looks like the champion, if one stops to consider the scoring it has done in the five games played. All in all, the Academy has rolled up 152 points, an average of 30 a game. Its record is free from any sort of blemish. Stevens' men have not been beaten, scored upon or tied.

Port Jervis, Kingston's opponent for Saturday, rates second best. Chase's men have won four out of five engagements, gathering a total score of 77 points to 9 of their opponents. Middletown, losers of two out of five, has scored 65 points to 20 of its opposition. Then comes Kingston, also losers of two games, that has collected 37 counts to 15 of its opponents.

Chumas of Newburgh with five touchdowns and three points after, leads the list of individual scorers with 33 points. Oliver, Port Jervis back, is second with 24 markers.

Following is the records of the individual backs and teams:

AS NEAR AS POSSIBLE

Two young men were in earnest conversation on matters regarding the fair sex.

"How could you be so doubtful as to tell Miss Prim she was pretty?" asked Cuthbert.

"I wasn't deceitful at all," replied Basil.

"But, my dear man," said Cuthbert, "you don't mean to say you think she is actually pretty?"

"Of course not," replied his companion. "What I told her was that she was as pretty as she could be."—Stray Stories.

MUST WOMEN SUFFER?

Is it their lot to suffer every month? Compulsively? The most effective of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured all this for many thousands of women.

Mrs. Schaeffer's case is typical. She was always sickly, tired, gloomy. "Now," she says, "everywhere I go people tell me how much better I look. I feel like dancing for joy all the time."

Prominent Men Will Appear in Henry's Wedding

"Henry's Wedding," with a local cast of 246 people, promises to be one of the greatest amateur shows ever staged in Kingston, N.Y. This comedy will be presented Thursday and Friday, November 3 and 4, at the high school auditorium.

Besides the play proper, the big and outstanding feature of the production is the specialty, "Beau and Belle of Grandma's Time," with 34 prominent men dressed in costumes of the gay nineties, representing such characters as "Daisy Belle," "Broadway Butterfly" and others.

The specialty itself is most unique and different. It is said. These characters appear between the first and second acts, with a chorus of 70 on the stage singing old and favorite songs.

The following prominent men of Kingston are taking part in this big feature: Sergeant James V. Simpson, Senator Arthur Wicks, Judge Bernard H. Culleton, Assistant City Clerk Sam Mann, John Egan, William R. Kraft, E. Frank Flanagan, J. Edward Conway, Ray Everett, Samuel Kaplan, Sam Bernstein, Jr., Charles J. Mullin, Fire Chief Joseph Murphy, Charles Ryan, William H. City Treasurer James H. Bore, Maurice Niles, John Saxo, County Treasurer Arthur Rice, Supervisor Edward M. Stanbrough, Alderman Lyman T. Schoonmaker, Mayor Eugene B. Carey, William B. Martin, Ben Soper, Frank Fatum, William Singer, Lew Kantrowitz, Sydney Marks, Allan Baker, George L. Zelle, Zelle Boss, Alderman-at-large C. J. Heiselman, John T. Bott and Irving Avery.

BONES OF CAMELS FOUND IN NEBRASKA

Roamed That Section About 3,000,000 Years Ago.

Dever, Colo.—The skeletons of a herd of eleven camels, found in Nebraska, 3,000,000 years old, will soon adorn the halls of the Colorado Museum of Natural History here.

The camels, although built almost the same as the modern camel common to the Sahara desert, are much smaller. The Nebraska prehistoric creature stood only three feet high.

Proof that the camels lived in Nebraska when that country was a desert of fine, blowing sand, comes from the strata of sand in which the fossils were found. They were native of the Miocene age, according to Director J. D. Higgins of the museum.

For many years the camels roamed the sands. They did not travel fast. Large herds of them, thousands perhaps, would return for weeks to the same bed of sand at night. They would gather close together for rest and protection from night prowlers. During this period that a herd slept on the same spot, some of them were bound to die. And in such a place were the skeletons found which were brought to Dever for the education of the world.

Archie, the skeleton of archidodon meridionalis nebraskensis, a mammoth elephant, which occupies an exhibition stall adjoining the small camels, also came from Nebraska. But the two animals never met. They could not have lived in the same type of country. Archie is only 20,000 years old, as compared with the 3,000,000 years of his neighbors.

Ancient Indian Guards

Ritual of Ponca Tribe

Ponca City, Okla.—Only one member of the Ponca Indian tribe is left who knows the secret ceremonies of the medicine men of the Poncas.

Little Dance, who does not know the exact date of his birth, but does know he was a small child when the meteor group of 1833 passed over the United States, lives on the reservation south of here, with his sons and daughters, and will not talk to white men.

From historical records, which verify his story of the comet, telling of a meteor shower on November 12 and 13, 1833, the ancient Ponca must be well over one hundred.

Among the secrets of his tribe, which he alone could reveal and which will probably die with him, are the clan secrets of the Poncas. The seven clans of the Poncas—the Medicine band, Buffalo band, Ice band, Deer band, Snake band—all have lost their rituals. They are known only by the medicine man.

Little Dance takes as active a part as possible in the sacred dances, and always helps with the arrangements. Alone, he holds hundreds of secrets, from the mixing of paint to the ceremonies of the forbidden sun dance.

Uses Window in Chest to Study Internal Diseases

Arnold's Park, Iowa.—Use of a window placed in the chest to observe the action of the heart, lungs and diaphragm of animals in the study of internal diseases has been perfected by Dr. Walter L. Mendenhall, former head of the Drake university physics department.

Mendenhall is head of the department of pharmacology at the Boston university school of medicine.

The device is expected to prove valuable in the treatment of tuberculosis, heart disease and lung disorders. The window is made of photographic film and is placed in the chest opening, inserted between the muscles.

Physicians believe it is possible that the window could be used for treatment of disease by ultraviolet light by substituting a quartz window for the photographic film window. Doctor Mendenhall demonstrated his experiment in April before the Federated Societies for Experimental Biology in Philadelphia.

Veteran Regains Memory and Kin After 14 Years

Roma, N. Y.—Separated from his wife and children for 14 years by a lapse of memory, Lewis N. Greeney, thirty-nine-year-old World war veteran, has just been reunited with his family here.

Greeney was injured at Camp Wadsworth, S. D., in 1915, when he saved a child from being run down by a truck. His memory was gone, and he knew nothing of his former life. Recently Greeney recalled he had once lived at Massena, N. Y., and through the American Legion his family was located.

Ben Bobbed Hair for Choir Singers

William, Kan.—The girls and women who sing in the choir at the annual old-fashioned camp meeting of the Kansas State Holiness association must not have bobbed hair and they must be dressed modestly.

Women were requested not to appear on the platform with bobbed hair. They were asked to dress modestly. The religious services continued were simple—prayer meeting at 7 p. m., followed by song service and preaching. The afternoon session followed the same routine.

ROSENDALE.
Rosedale, Oct. 25.—Harry Snyder has returned home and is taking care of the father's business.

The Rev. Walter G. Gratton, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, spent two days last week at Lake Mahopac, N. Y., attending the fall conference of the Episcopal Church.

Miss Mary McCabe of Walkkill was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Mihalco and family.

The friends of Mrs. Walter Gratton will be glad to hear she is improving in health and is gradually getting stronger.

Regular services will be held in the following churches:
St. Peter's Catholic Church—Masses at 8 and 10:15.
The Rev. O'Reilly, pastor, Sunday school at 9 a. m.
Rosedale Baptist Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.
All Saints' Episcopal Church—Services at 11 a. m. The Rev. Walter G. Gratton, rector. Sunday school at 10 a. m.
Rosedale Reformed Church—Services at 11:15 a. m. The Rev. Charles V. Bedford, pastor. Sunday school at 10:15 a. m. Prayer meeting every Tuesday at 8 p. m.
At the Ladies Aid meeting of the Reformed Church, held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Mary Snyder, the society welcomed into its membership three new members.

WHY

Sweet Corn and Peas Lose Flavor in Storage.

Many persons can truthfully say that the best sweet corn they ever ate was from their own garden, and that they have been disappointed in some corn they bought from the store. Perhaps the corn in the store looked just as good as that from their own garden, but somehow it did not have the flavor. We all know it was a fact, without knowing why.

A biological chemist working in Maryland a few years ago found that when sweet corn was kept in a warm place, such as a meat grocery store counter, in summer, it lost half of its sugar content in 24 hours. This sugar turned to starch. According to a law discovered by a Dutch chemist long ago, these changes from sugar to starch take place only about half as fast, if the temperature is lowered by 18 degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore, if half the sugar is lost in 24 hours at 80 degrees Fahrenheit, only one-fourth would be lost at 62 degrees Fahrenheit, or only one-eighth at 44 degrees Fahrenheit.

Peas make a similar change, and this fact emphasizes that these two vegetables should either be harvested just before they are to be cooked, or else be kept on ice until used.

Why Fossil Examination

Has a Practical Value

Traces of the life of the past are known as fossils, whether they are the actual remains of organisms or merely indications of their former existence. The greater proportion of ancient life has left no record, yet many organisms have been preserved by burial in sediments of rivers, lakes, and oceans. Their record reveals the successions of animals and plants of the past, the changes they have undergone, and their relationship to and culmination in modern life.

Fossils also are used in dating geologic events and in the discovery of natural resources. For instance, in drilling for petroleum microscopic fossils known as foraminifera may be found in the well cuttings. Since certain foraminifera are confined to certain rock layers, they may indicate to the expert either that the drill stopped short of the productive layer and thus should be carried deeper, or that the well actually reached the oil zone, but found it locally barren.

Why Hafslund Is Valuable

Hafslund is one of the newly discovered elements, element No. 72, discovered by Coster and Hecoy. It takes its name from Hafslund, which is Latin for Copenhagen, where research was carried on which led to the discovery. It is expected to prove of great value because of its high melting point and electronic conductivity, for use in radio tubes, incandescent lamp filaments and cathode surfaces such as X-ray tubes and rectifiers. While there is none in the United States now, patents requiring its use have been applied for. The element is a constituent of zircon ore. It is extremely valuable.

Why Blue Is Cool Color

All colors are produced by vibrations of rays of light. Those vibrating less than 470,000,000,000 times per second produce a red sensation and are described as warm. As the number of vibrations increases shades of orange, yellow, green, blue and violet appear. The slower the rays move the greater amount of energy is contained by the light. The more rapid vibrations contain less energy and therefore are a smaller tax upon the eye and produce colors which are described as cold.

Why Known as Chapter House

The prebendaries formerly attached to each cathedral or collegiate church were collectively known as the chapter, from the Latin "caput," head or chief, because they claimed precedence over the monks, canons and priests. The place where they assembled for the exercise of discipline and the management of ecclesiastical affairs generally was known as the chapter house. The first parliament of England assembled in the chapter house of Westminster.

Why "Only Child" Is Lucky

The reputation of the only child is challenged by D. A. Worcester, writing in Hygiene, the Health Magazine. The only child, according to studies made by Mr. Worcester and associates at the University of Nebraska, is not of less intelligence and emotional stability than the non-only child. The only child, he says, has better health and a better chance to succeed in life.

Why Some Snakes Are "Boas"

"Boa" is now applied to a large group of snakes which kill their prey by constriction. The name was originally applied to a species of water snakes in Roman times. Pliny in his natural history says the word is from Latin "boia," cow, referring to the common belief in ancient times that this species of snake was given to sucking cows.

Why "Monumental City"

Baltimore had monuments in its square before other cities in the United States had, and also had the imposing monument to Washington. Therefore it was given the nickname "Monumental City."

Why Roads Are "Turnpikes"

"Turnpike" is an old name for a tollbar or tollgate. The original turnpike roads were merely roads. "Pike" is a shortened form of "turnpike."

Ardonia, Oct. 28.—Emmett Hyatt attended the second meeting of the Epworth League Winter Institute in St. John's Church in Newburgh Tuesday evening. Several members from Modena also attended. The next meeting will be held Tuesday evening, November 1, in Maybrook.

Miss Emma Palmer was a recent business caller in New Paltz.

John O. Gillette, district superintendent of schools, has appointed Miss K. Florence Morrisey as examiner at Modena School No. 4, when examinations will be given for certificates of literacy on Tuesday, November 1, and Thursday, November 3.

Mr. and Mrs. James Haight and daughter of Newburgh were recent callers at the home of Miss Emma Palmer.

Mrs. Hector Avery and daughter, Bernice, and Mrs. James Coey, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dedrick Rusk recently.

RHEUMATISM

Now Medicine Drives Out Poison. That Causes Torturing Suffering, Swelling and Lameness.

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

You cannot get rid of rheumatic aches and pains, Neuritis, Lumbago, Stiffness, lame knotted muscles and painful swollen joints till you drive from your system the irritating poison that causes rheumatism. That's why external treatment only gives temporary relief.

What you need is EUMA, the new internal medicine that acts on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps clear through the natural channels of elimination, those dangerous poisons.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop—EUMA comes pain first day—and gives rheumatic sufferers such relief and lasting relief from their aching, crippling lameness and torturing pain that it is recommended by druggists everywhere.

McBride Drug Store gives every sufferer to get a $1.00 bottle of EUMA today, and agree to return the purchase price if it does not free them from all their aches and pains of rheumatism.

ALL COOKS LOOK ALIKE

to a hungry man, but what a sad disappointment when the "Eich-on-ques" quite suddenly and the table looks anything but satisfying to a raptorial appetite. When in doubt as to what to do, use The Freeman's "Help Wanted" Cut-a-Word Department.
